Winners In Census Contest Announced

An attractive San Rafael career woman, who works in the county assessor's office, can go on a buying spree today because she guessed the population of Marin County within eight of the census figure.

Mrs. H. J. Anderson of 115 Golden Hinde Boulevard won $100 in merchandise orders as first prize in the Independent-Journal's census contest because she pegged the county's population as of April 30 at 145,553. The figure returned by the census bureau was 145,545.

Mrs. Anderson has lived here since July, 1958, when she and her husband, a civilian employee of the Army Transportation Department at Fort Mason, moved from San Francisco.

"How did I hit so close? Well, it was just a good guess," said the lucky Mrs. Anderson today.

The contest, with prizes for nearest correct estimates of population of the county and its cities and of the Independent-Journal's paid circulation on April 30, produced one double winner.

Mrs. Ann L. Gumperz of 423 East Blithedale Avenue, Mill Valley, guessed both the I-J circulation and the Mill Valley population closer than did anyone else.

Mrs. Gumperz, wife of a Standard Oil Co. analyst who works in San Francisco, pegged the I-J's circulation at 28,375. The correct figure was 28,384.

Mrs. Gumperz won a $25 merchandise order. She barely nosed out R. Gioana of San Anselmo, who estimated the circulation at 28,374.

Mrs. Gumperz was within nine of the correct circulation figure and within 18 of Mill Valley's population. She guessed her home town at 10,360 people. The census gave it 10,342. She received another $25 for the Mill Valley estimate.

Other winners in estimating city populations, who receive $25 merchandise orders, are:

Corte Madera — Mrs. David L. McIntosh, 49 Birch Avenue.

Fairfax — Mrs. Michel Lipman, 485 Scenic Drive.

Larkspur — Milton W. Fleischmann, 421 Elm Avenue.

Novato — Mrs. Joseph M. Keating, 1378 Joyce Street.

Ross — Mrs. Elaine Guthrie, Glenwood Avenue.

San Anselmo — Richard Keating, 130 Ross Avenue.

San Rafael — Mrs. W. L. Morgan, 15 Madeleine Lane.

Sausalito — Charlene Strittmatter, 28 Filbert Street.

Mrs. McIntosh missed the population of her home town of Corte Madera by only five, estimating it at 5,950 where the census found 5,945.

Mrs. McIntosh is the wife of a Corte Madera police sergeant.

Mrs. Lipman missed the population of Fairfax by 64, but her guess was the closest of scores who tried to peg the Fairfax figure in the contest.

She guessed 5,608, underestimating the 5,672 returned by the census. Other guesses ranged from 5,500 to 5,900.

WEISSICH STILL FUMING

Visiting Judge Dismisses Narcotics Suspects Case

Two women narcotics suspects who profited yesterday by an official bailed to slip out of Marin County custody were today in the hands of state agents and center of further investigation in San Francisco.

"I hope authorities there won't run into the same obstacles we did here," stormed Dist. Atty. William O. Weissich after Deputy Dist. Atty. Harold F. Walters had asked and obtained dismissal of a case before visiting Judge Wallace W. Cox of Solano County in Marin Municipal Court.

Walters said Mrs. Elsie L. Gallo, 40, and Mrs. Terrell Lynn Wells, 25, arrested in Mill Valley last Sunday on charges of obtaining narcotics by fraud, should be freed "in the interest of justice."

Weissich and Walters refused to prosecute after a wrangle between Weissich and county physician Rafael G. Duffy over action by the district attorney's office in providing narcotics for the women because, according to Weissich, they were suffering "withdrawal symptoms" and Duffy couldn't be reached.

Duffy alleged that there was no need for treatment and that "shots" were given in exchange for information, which Weissich denied. But Weissich indicated there was reason to believe the women were linked with a ring burglarizing drug stores from Washington to southern California.

Sheriff Louis P. Mountanos backed Duffy in halting further "shots" for the women. But Weissich's own last shot was—"It was impossible to proceed in this county in view of all this interference."

Senate Passes Richardson Flood Fund

But Amendment Probably Due House Approval

An army engineer survey flood control problems on streams flowing into Richardson Bay has moved closer to final approval in Washington, according to a telegram from Sen. Thomas H. Kuchel (R-Calif.)

The omnibus public works authorization bill, including the Richardson Bay project, was approved by the Senate last night, as part of a Senate amendment to a version the House approved at the last session of Congress.

Apparently this amendment will have to receive House approval before the bill can go to the President.

Kuchel said that the amendment specifically names Coyote Creek and Arroyo Corte Madera Del Presidio.

Coyote Creek, flowing through Tamalpais Valley, has been ahead of the other areas such as Mill Valley's Arroyo Corte Madera Del Presidio.

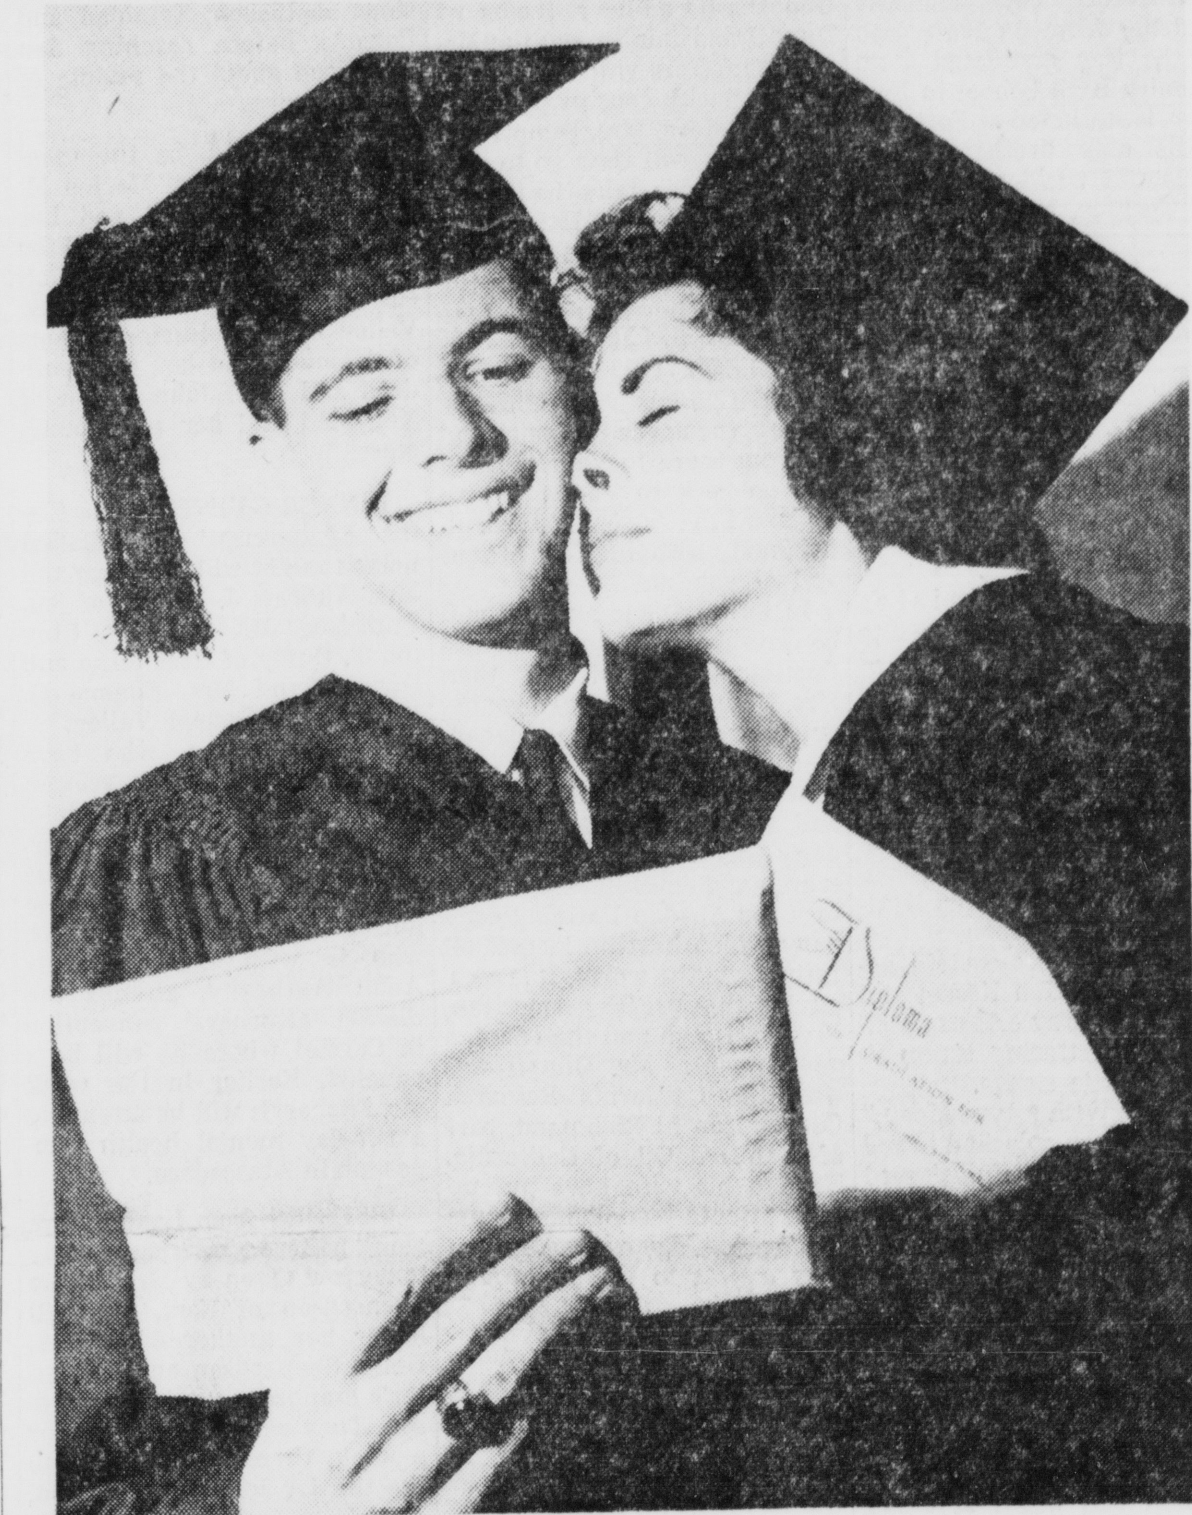

The Tamalpais Valley work was to have been handled under the Small Project Act until its cost soared.

Under that act the federal government contribution would be limited to $400,000. When army engineers found that the apparent cost would be $527,000, this left a sum which Marin County has not found means to provide.

WEATHER FORECAST

Bay Area: Fair tomorrow but high fog near coast extending inland.

Sierra Nevada: Mostly fair tomorrow, but cloudy afternoon.

Marin College Breakfast Ends Hunger Strike On Death Row

Ten College of Marin graduates were honored and awarded last night at graduation ceremonies in which 104 received associate of arts degrees.

Marianne E. Rattenbury and Lana Jean Maxwell received the school's highest awards in scholarship. Gertrude S. Mueller received the annual art award.

Student body president Gary Antolini and homecoming queen Judy Buell were honored for outstanding citizenship, while Marie Ann Smeltzer received the Associated Women students Merit Award.

Bank of America awards went to Marianne E. Rattenbury and Joyce Pearl Farnsworth. Rotary Club scholarship went to James Turietta. Thea Snyder Bama won the Alpha Gamma Sigma scholarship.

A class gift of a grove of redwood trees was presented the college by Judith Bell, class secretary-treasurer.

Marin Valuation Jump Predicted

Marin County will have an assessed value of 400 million dollars by 1970, according to a special study report from the Bay Area Rapid Transit District released today.

This compares with a present assessed valuation of 218 million and represents a faster upward trend than the estimate shows for five central Bay Area counties overall.

The forecast for the five counties is an increase from a present $4,519,600,000 to $6,786,940,000 in 10 years.

Breakfast was not only served but eaten on San Quentin's Death Row this morning as a three-day not-very-hungry hunger strike ended.

Since Wednesday, 16 of the 17 inmates of the row had accepted but not eaten regular meals.

But they drank coffee and milk, and they nibbled previously stored apples, oranges and candy bars.

Nobody got either hungry

Passport Case Probe Still On

SAN FRANCISCO (UPI) — The investigation into the case of Francis Parker Yockey will continue despite the death of the 43-year-old mystery man of many passports and aliases.

Yockey somehow ended his life late Thursday night in his county jail cell with cyanide.

But a spokesman for the federal grand jury said it would continue to investigate Yockey, on the theory that the other persons were perhaps involved with Yockey in a passport ring.

State department agents, the U.S. attorney's office and police also divided again into his background record of mental disorders and alleged association with Fascist groups.

Japan Ratifies Pact; Unrest Still Simmers

TOKYO (P) — Prime Minister Nobusuke Kishi scored a victory over his Communist and left wing opponents Sunday with final parliamentary approval of a new military alliance with the United States.

But thousands of demonstrators who had chanted and snake-danced through the city shouting opposition to the treaty up to midnight, surrounded the Prime Minister's official residence and threatened to keep him penned inside until he met with them.

Ike Assures Chiang U.S. Ready To Help

TAIPEI (UPI) — President Eisenhower today wound up a triumphant visit which reassured Nationalist Chinese that the United States would rush to their aid if communist China carries out new threats to "liberate" Formosa.

As the president prepared to fly to Okinawa and Seoul, South Korea, the communist Chinese vowed to seize this Nationalist island.

"The Chinese people will liberate Taiwan (Formosa) without fail," speakers boasted. "Eisenhower must get out of the Far East."

Earlier Eisenhower addressed a crowd of some half million people in which he denounced the "tyranny" of the red regime on the communist mainland.

"You may be assured," the president said "that our continuing search for peaceful solutions to outstanding international problems does not reflect the slightest lessening of our determination to stand with you, and with all our free neighbors of the Pacific, against aggression."

The President expressed his determination to press on in searching for what he called an "effective means to outlaw war and to promote the rule of law among nations."

Such a noble quest, he said, is not aided by yielding to threats or by weakening defense against potential aggressors.

"Indeed such weakness would increase the danger of war," he said.

Brown Gains In Plan To Dump Ziffren

SACRAMENTO (P) — Democrats clashed today in an apparent winning battle by Gov. Brown to dump Paul Ziffren as Democratic national committeeman.

The squabble developed as the state's delegation to the Democratic national convention gathered for its first caucus since the recent presidential primary.

AUTOMATIC APPROVAL

The ratification evened the score in a week of turmoil over the treaty. The left wing had claimed a victory when threats of violence forced Kishi to withdraw an invitation to President Eisenhower to visit Tokyo. It failed in its drive against the U.S.-Japan defense alliance when the treaty was automatically ratified at a moment past midnight.

Thousands of students, clustered about the Prime Minister's residence, vowed to remain until Kishi met with them "in the same manner as deposed South Korean President Syngman Rhee met with students" during the Korean uprising that finally drove Rhee from office.

NATIONS GRATIFIED

Kishi's government expressed gratification at the treaty's passage, and in Washington the State Department said: "We view this as another demonstration of U.S.-Japanese friendship."

The biggest demonstration of a turbulent month was staged by the Communists, Socialists and fellow travelers in the hours preceding the automatic ratification of the treaty.

The treaty replaces a 1951 defense agreement, provides that U.S. bases will remain in Japan for at least 10 more years. The United States will defend Japan in case of attack. The U.S. government will consult with Japan before deploying forces from Japan or bringing in new armament.

Giants Fire Bill Rigney

SAN FRANCISCO (P) — Bill Rigney was fired today as manager of the San Francisco Giants. Tom Sheehan, head of the Giants scouting system, was appointed interim field chief.

Horace Stoneham, president of the Giants, said Sheehan would take over immediately, and serve until he has more time to select a new manager.

Rigney, 41, in his fifth year as Giant boss, got in hot water after the second-place Giants lost three games straight to league leading Pittsburgh.

Look Like A Model Is Theme Of Fashion Focus Luncheon

The fresh, feminine and flattering "Band Box" look is easy to achieve for a summer beauty if you just know how to "Look Like a Powers Model."

This was proven delightfully on Tuesday at Rickey's popular Fashion Focus luncheon when the Band Box models of the John Roberts Powers school promenaded in a fashionable salute to United Cerebral Palsy, Inc. of Marin. With charm, poise, and assurance, the lovely young ladies paraded through the Garden Room, Lanai and Terrace, clearly showing that when they receive their diplomas very soon, they will be worthy of the distinction "Powers Model."

For United Cerebral Palsy, Inc., the afternoon added donations of dollars to the Marin fund, with many surprises awarded to lucky winners who went home happier knowing such a donation would help one of the children born every 53 minutes who will have cerebral palsy.

Aiding and abetting the cause of a summer beauty was a San Rafael specialty shop with gingham and stripes, prints and plaids, polka dots brightening the scene for every summer occasion. Patio, pool, barbecue, beach, mountains, all came in for their share of fashionable attention.

Adding the perfect finishing touch to the Band Box look for summer were beautiful new coiffures created for the models by a San Rafael hairdresser, each causing a great deal of favorable comment as the girls promenaded.

To "Look Like A Powers Model" and have the bandbox look:

"By the Pool," Lola Selleck, a mermaid in white eyelet, the swimsuit playing peekaboo over a print of lavender, mauve and pink with a matching jacket.

"On The Beach," a saucy blue and white striped cotton cropped top to team with tapers to match and a coordinated skirt to make it a threesome for Judy Grow.

"Back-Yard Barbecue," a spicy blend of browns and beiges from Beau monde on Cinnamon plaided on a cotton shirt and skirt to ride equally well in a sports car with Jan Siemens.

"For A Lovely Luncheon," Denne Snedeker, a serving of blue and white checked gingham, the two pieces with the look of a shirtmaker cinched at the tiny waist with a matching cummerbund.

"Garden Party," daisies blooming on black and white checked organdy, an apron of white organdy up the front and Barbara Du Puis to show it becoming.

"Dinner and a Date," Barbara Shadell choosing the prettiest print for the summer, yellow, orange and lavender roaming a beautiful full skirt lightly sparked with green.

"Theater Time," curtain going up for Marilyn Kascel and the magic of gray organdy styled with a flattering tunic, V-neck and little sleeve.

"In Tune With a June Moon," Linda Pederson splashed in red polka dots on a full-skirted swoosh of white organdy, chaperoned by a white angora cardigan for cool evenings.

Next Tuesday, Fashion Focus says let's go "Scouting Through Summer," to honor the Girl Scouts of Marin County with fashions for busy mothers and fashions for vacationing daughters. The popular poolside luncheon will begin at 12:30, with mermaids of the Ballet Aquacade swimming in the pool just prior to the 1 p.m. showing.

Reservations may be made by calling Rickey's.

MARIN'S SOCIAL WHIRL

African Travelers Honored At Party

By FLORENCE DONNELLY

When two or more Marinites gather these days, trips and vacations are generally the topic of conversation. The exciting plans of the Carl Springs of Sausalito were discussed at the luncheon in their honor given on Sunday by the Eugene T. Severins. Carl and Mary will leave on July 7 for Africa where they'll travel to the first of November. This will be their second time there and they intend to add materially to their already large collection of colored slides. They'll fly to Nairobi Kenya and travel in that area for several weeks. On Aug. 18 the Springs will join the Hemphill Unusual Tour which will take them far into the interior to see the wild animals and primitive people. After the tour is over the Springs will return to Kenya and from there go on to Sudan.

FABULOUS is the trip Mrs. L. H. Dimpfl will make with her four children, Diane, Bill, Claudia and Joan. They'll sail on July 7 aboard the Chusan via the Panama Canal for England. In London, they'll visit Mr. Dimpfl's brother Robert Dimpfl and family and the Marin youngsters will become acquainted with cousins they never saw before. Mrs. Dimpfl and her family will then go to Amsterdam, Paris, take the trip up the Rhine, stop at Heidelberg, go to Switzerland and then to Nurem for several days in the high Alps. They'll travel to Lausanne then to Lake Lugano for several days. They'll stop in Milan then go on to Florence for a week, then over to Venice and go from there to Velden. They will go back to Venice to sail on board the Ausonia to Beirut, Lebanon, stopping at Athens and Alexandria.

In Beirut Diane and Bill will be enrolled at the American Community school and then Mrs. Dimpfl and the two younger children will go to Abadan, in southwest Iran for a two years' stay with the husband and father. He left for there early this month to start a research and development laboratory for Abadan Refining company which has the largest oil refinery in the world. It is owned by the British, American, French, Dutch and the Iranian government. Mr. Dimpfl was with the California Research Corporation in Richmond, part of Standard Oil of California. He and his wife have put up their Kent Woodlands home for lease. When they return they expect to travel through the Orient.

HAWAII is attracting many Marinites. The Leonard Tews and their son, Roger, leave on July 1 by jet for Honolulu where they will stay at the Hawaiian Prince for a month. They have rented their Greenbrae home to the Claude Rosenbergs of San Francisco. They're planning a rendezvous with the Charles Taccis of San Rafael, who with their daughter, Mary Jane, who was graduated from San Rafael High School last night, and their son, Tom, a sophomore at the school, sail on the Matsonia on Tuesday for Honolulu. They'll return by air. Also aboard the Matsonia will be Mr. and Mrs. Stanley R. Barras of San Rafael and Mr. and Mrs. Bryan McCarthy of San Rafael and their three children, Jean, Susan and Mark. The McCarthy's will stay with Bryan's brother, Col. Warren McCarthy, who is stationed at Fort Ruger in Honolulu, his wife and family. The McCarthy's will also return by air.

UNUSUAL is the vacation planned by the Homer Hoods of San Rafael who left this morning in their new Cadillac for St. Louis, Mo., where they will visit Homer's only brother, Kenneth Hood. Homer and Hilda will drift down a tributary of the White River in a flat bottomed boat on a fishing trip and as if that wouldn't be enough of the finny creatures the fishermen will stop in Colorado, en route home, to try their luck in the Gunnison River.

THE HAL E. MOORES of Ross and daughter, Vicky, leave soon for London, where they will pick up a car and tour the British Isles for six or seven weeks. They will also visit Mr. Moore's relatives both in England and Scotland. Mr. Moore, who was with the British government, all during the war has not been back to his native country since 1947 and is anticipating many changes.

The Moores will return by ship sailing from England on Aug. 23 on the Iberia which has stops at Lisbon, Trinidad and Panama before reaching San Francisco about the middle of September.

TAHOE WILL be the vacation locale of Mrs. Marion M. Scott of San Rafael and her daughter, Pamela. They'll be joined at Mrs. Scott's place on the Truckee, opposite to Squaw Valley by Mrs. Burton Adams of Alameda and her four children and Mrs. John Anton of Kentfield and her two youngsters.

The barrow was centered with watermelon shells filled with melon balls and grapes. Branches of purple and green grapes were festooned around the shells. The melon balls and grapes were put into serving glasses by the guests and the champagne poured over them.

The bride is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Harrison Dibblee Jr., of Ross, and the bridegroom, the son of Mr. and Mrs. Francis Kirkham of San Francisco.

Rev. Harold Hallett performed the ceremony. Choir boys of St. John's preceded the wedding party to the altar.

Given in marriage by her father, the bride wore a full length gown of white peau de soie fashioned with a bateau neckline bordered with Duchesse lace, and three-quarter length sleeves. The bell skirt had a bustled back and extended into a chapel train. Her fingertip veil of illusion was held by a Dior bow of peau de soie and she carried a bouquet of orchids, lilies of the valley and stephanotis.

Unit Gives Report On Health Faith

By LOUIS CASSELS
U.P. INTERNATIONAL

Four years ago, the Presbyterian Church in the U.S.A. appointed a special commission of distinguished theologians, pastors, doctors and psychiatrists.

Their assignment: study "the relation of religious faith to health."

The commission's report is now in hand. It is not a sensational document and it won't satisfy people who hold strong views, pro or con, about the phenomenon called spiritual healing.

But it should commend itself to the large body of Christians who are sincerely perplexed about the whole subject, and who are groping for a viewpoint which is compatible both with the findings of modern science and the teachings of the Bible.

The commission rejected both of the extreme attitudes which tend to dominate public discussion of non-medical healing.

It said that neither the Bible nor historical Christian experience provides any justification for the belief that God will miraculously cure any illness if the victim or his friends pray hard enough and "have enough faith."

This belief has been energetically peddled by some flamboyant "faith healers" who act as if God were at their beck and call.

But it certainly was not shared by authors of the new testament. St. Paul, for example, records that God saw fit not to remove his "thorn in the flesh," although the apostle earnestly prayed for healing.

On the other hand, the commission said, it is equally contrary to Biblical teaching and to actual human experience to deny that spiritual healing does sometimes occur.

The New Testament records 26 specific instances, and mentions hundreds more, in which Jesus healed ailments ranging from blindness to leprosy.

The commission suggested that a "theology of healing" can be built around the following basic convictions:

1. "All healing is of God, whether it occurs through what we call natural law or according to laws which we do not yet know."

2. Medical science, which utilizes the understood principles of God's natural law to facilitate healing, is a providential blessing, and no Christian should scorn it.

3. Christians should pray for the recovery of the sick, and they may properly ask health not only for others, but for themselves.

4. "Prayer is efficacious for healing. On the basis of pastoral and medical experience alike, there is no doubt that Christian faith has contributed in a salutary way to restorations of health."

5. But "healing does not always come to those who pray for it," however ardent their faith. "God is to be worshipped, not used," and "it is a presumptuous notion that human faith can, as it were, work miracles constantly."

6. Faith is not a subscription to statements about God, nor a willingness to believe that he exists and can do anything he likes. It is "a profoundly personal relationship between the believer and God through Jesus Christ."

Whatever role it may play in sustaining or restoring health, "faith is its own reward." Its "supreme importance" is derived, not from occasional physical healings which may be associated with it, but from its unflinching power to redeem the total human personality from the ultimate fetters of sin and death.

ALMANAC

Today is Saturday, June 18, the 170th day of the year, with 196 more in 1960.

The moon is approaching its new phase.

The morning stars are Mars, Jupiter and Saturn.

The evening star is Mercury.

On this day in history:

In 1812 Congress declared war on Great Britain.

In 1815, British forces, commanded by the Duke of Wellington, and Prussian forces led by Field Marshal Von Blucher, defeated Napoleon at Waterloo.

In 1940, Prime Minister Churchill addressing the House of Commons warned members that the Battle of Britain was about to start... and said they should bear themselves so that men would say: "This was their finest hour."

A thought for today: English author W. Somerset Maugham said in "Of Human Bondage": "There are two good things in life, freedom of thought and freedom of action."

Pilot Had Hero's Death; Police Say Crash Staged

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Residents watched in horror as a twin-engine plane roared overhead, trailing flames.

The pilot opened his escape hatch, but didn't jump.

He stayed with the fiercely burning craft until it smashed into a remote canyon—and died what was called a hero's death.

That was three years ago. Police yesterday tarnished James Gibbs' claims to glory.

Gibbs, they said, took the plane up to crash it on purpose—for a share in $50,000 insurance money.

Gibbs' boss, they said, deliberately sabotaged the plane, to make sure that it wouldn't return from the flight.

Detectives booked Richard E. Loomis, 45, on suspicion of murder. Police said he collected $47,000 in insurance after the crash — and refused to share it with Gibbs' survivors.

Did Gibbs, 32, know he was going to die?

"He certainly didn't go up there to commit suicide," said Sgt. Pierce Brooks, who worked four months on the bizarre case. "Apparently he just didn't get a chance to jump."

The plane was a DeHavilland Mosquito bomber, built in Britain of plywood during World War II.

They were called "flying coffins" because the plywood was so quick to burn.

Police say they are sure of this: "Loomis sabotaged the plane's hydraulic system, which controls the landing mechanism, in such a way as to preclude a safe landing."

Officer Albert Howenstein, in herding youths away from the drive-in, saw a car without a license plate or registration.

He cited Thomas J. Mondragon, 18, of 383 Shoreline Highway, Mill Valley, for the license violations, and for carrying a suspended operator's license.

Mondragon's friend, 17, police said, then grabbed the officer's tie and threatened him.

Boy Arrested After Pulling Officer's Tie

A 17-year-old San Rafael youth was taken to juvenile hall last night after he grabbed a San Anselmo policeman's tie who had dispersed youngsters watching a fight at a drive-in.

Officer Albert Howenstein, in herding youths away from the drive-in, saw a car without a license plate or registration.

He cited Thomas J. Mondragon, 18, of 383 Shoreline Highway, Mill Valley, for the license violations, and for carrying a suspended operator's license.

Mondragon's friend, 17, police said, then grabbed the officer's tie and threatened him.

National Guard Company Leaves

Capt. Willard B. Tribble of Mill Valley headed a San Rafael contingent of 50 men and eight trucks of Co. D which joined this morning with 300 other officers and men of the 579th Engineering Battalion, National Guard, as they came through from Santa Rosa.

All 350 in the battalion were off for two weeks of summer training at Fort Ord, one of four California army installations at which more than 6,000 part-time soldiers will train. Training ends July 2.

Driverless Auto Knocks Down Tree

A driverless car rolled out of a driveway into Via Chepparo, Greenbrae, yesterday afternoon.

It knocked down a tree, then crossed the road into the yard of 14 Via Chepparo where it came to rest against a tree and fence.

The owner, Dr. Clarence F. Crossley, 35, of 15 Via Chepparo, told the California Highway Patrol he had parked in his own driveway.

Ad Solicitation Program Lacks Chamber's Nod

A magazine advertising solicitation campaign now appearing in Marin County, suggested as being connected with official law enforcement agencies, has not received the approval of the solicitation committee of the Greater San Rafael Chamber of Commerce, Richard L. Shirley, chamber manager, said today.

Many telephone inquiries made to the chamber reported the sales representative for the magazine, "State Policeman" inferred the publication was connected with the California Highway Patrol. Capt. T. F. Parnow of the patrol office in San Rafael, said "this publication has no connection with the CHP or any law enforcement group, and such inference is deceptive." San Rafael Police Chief Charles J. Chiesa concurred.

Drunken Driver Draws $150 Fine

The judge ordered Smith to pay for any damages he caused and not to drive during the time the state withholds driving privilege. Even if he gets his license back, during probation, he must not drive within 24 hours of drinking liquor.

E. C. Sauer, 84, Succumbs; Spanish-American War Vet

Elmer C. Sauer, 84, a retired Army warrant officer, and a San Rafael resident for 30 years, died yesterday in a San Francisco hospital where he had been a patient for a month.

A familiar figure in San Rafael, Sauer lived at 51 Greenfield Avenue. He retired from the Army in 1923 on a disability after 30 years service. Sauer was a veteran of the Spanish-American War and World War I, and on his retirement was a legal expert in Ninth Corps area headquarters at the Presidio.

He was a native of Kentucky and had lived in California 54 years. Surviving are his wife, Mary A. Sauer; and a sister, Mrs. Ollie Dietz of Los Angeles.

A private funeral will be held in Golden Gate National Cemetery, San Bruno.

WINNERS

ed all the way from 4,877 to 19,000.

Mrs. Lipman is an author and the wife of an author. Her husband, Clayre Lipman, created the "Point of Law" radio series.

Fleischmann, the Larkspur winner, is a state tax examiner. He put the Larkspur population at 5,599. The census gave it 5,642.

Mrs. Keating won the Novato prize partly because she was one of the few guessers who did not think Novato's regular census would show more residents than did its special census a month earlier. She pegged the Novato population at 17,565. The census made it 17,686. Most guessed Novato's count several too high.

Her husband, an Air Force captain now at Misawa Air Force Base in Japan, also entered the contest. He guessed too high.

Mrs. Guthrie, winner in Ross, is the wife of a physician. Dr. Joseph G. Guthrie, Mrs. Guthrie guessed Ross' population at 2,477. It did a little better on the census, returning 2,537.

Mrs. Morgan, who outnumbered a tremendous number of rivals in San Rafael, put the city's population at 20,387. The census gave it just six more — 20,393. It is highly doubtful whether Mrs. Morgan's husband, who is the city clerk, could have hit it so close.

Mrs. Morgan, who works for Pacific Gas & Electric Co. in San Rafael, declined to pose for her picture to accompany the account of her winning.

San Anselmo's winner, Richard Keating, put the Hub City's population at 11,690, well above the 11,512 shown by the census. But others missed farther.

Keating is an insurance agent at Point Reyes.

The prize in Sausalito went right to the city hall. Miss Strittmatter, the winner, is secretary to City Manager Charles Brown. She guessed the population at 5,854, well over the 5,286 given Sausalito by the census.

Greyhound Bus Station Looted

A thief broke into the Marin City Greyhound bus station and stole about $91 worth of tickets.

But investigators theorize the burglar won't get very far. The tickets were for commute fares and half fares for children.

Elmer A. Malcom McVerry supervisor at the station, called the sheriff at 8:30 p.m. Friday to report that ten 20-ride commute tickets and 29 half-fare tickets were missing. Several boxes of candy and possibly some cartons of cigarettes may be missing too, McVerry reported.

The thief apparently broke a window in the storeroom to enter.

Fairfax Will Host Meeting Of Mayors

Fairfax will be the host city for the Marin Council of Mayors July 29 dinner meeting, announced Fairfax Mayor Kenneth Edgarr.

Greenbrae Boy's Rites Pending

Funeral arrangements for 2½-year-old Kenneth Todd Bowers, drowned after a fall from a pier of the Greenbrae boardwalk yesterday, are pending at Keaton's Mortuary in San Rafael.

The child had wandered from the yard of his grandparents, Mr. and Mrs. F. C. Martin at 65 Boardwalk, and was reported missing.

Searching by boat, San Quentin correctional officer James Cavanaugh and Sheriff's Deputy Edmond D. Maubertret found the body tangled in a rope in the water 150 yards from the Martin home only 90 minutes later.

The child's mother, Mrs. Janice Ann Bowers, 20, has been spending the summer with her parents while her husband James Bowers is stationed at the U. S. Naval Base at Norfolk, Va.

NEERHOFF—A daughter, to the wife (Ann Gare) of Knute Neerhoff, Fairfax, June 16 in Marin General Hospital.

POOR FELLOW... SAYS HE FORGOT TO HAVE HIS VACATION PAK SAVED BACK HOME!

You can always enjoy your vacation more if you remembered to take care of all the little details before leaving home. Then you can gaze at the Grand Canyon or any other wonder of nature without a pang of that "something-wrong-at-home" feeling.

All will be well at home if you have a "Vacation Pak" waiting for your return.

You'll have all your favorite comic characters, and two weeks of sports and society news. Politics is boiling over this summer and you don't want to miss any part of it.

Features you like will all be there such as Three Minutes a Day, Try and Stop Me, What Our Readers Say.

All you need do is call GL 4-3020 or tell your carrier. Your newspapers will be saved while you vacation and delivered in a neat package when you return. There's no extra charge for this service and you'll enjoy catching up on what took place while you were away.

SEARCH FOR TALENT TURNS UP SOME

Ann Cantor of San Rafael (center) receives from Mrs. Sally De la Fontaine (right) local director of the Harry Conover Agency's search for talent program, a scholarship for study in the talent organization. Miss Cantor is an employee of the Modern Eve Shop. Geraldine Farmer, executive director of the agency, is at left.

New Officers Elected In Audubon Unit

Dr. J. Martin Griffin Jr. of Kentfield has taken over as president of the Marin Audubon Society.

Other new officers for 1960-61 include Dr. William Eastman Jr. of San Rafael, vice president; Mrs. Charles Durrie of Belvedere, treasurer; Mrs. William Allison of Lagunitas, corresponding secretary; and Mrs. Bruce R. Towle of Fairfax, recording secretary.

Directors are Mr. and Mrs. Bertram K. Dunshee of Ross, Lawrence W. Jordan of Mill Valley, Dr. Dorothy Morse of Corte Madera, Loreta Pacheco of San Rafael, Stanley Picher of Belvedere, Mrs. Calvin Terwilliger of Mill Valley, S. Thompson Walker of San Rafael, Dr. Robert C. West of Corte Madera and Mary Westwood of Mill Valley.

Committee chairmen are Mrs. B. K. Dunshee of Ross, conservation; Mrs. Robert L. Mayer of Sausalito, publicity; Stanley Picher of Belvedere, field trips and memberships; Mary Westwood of Mill Valley, conservation, education; and Mrs. Guy Milner of San Rafael, editor of monthly publication.

The annual barbecue has been set for next October at the Rose Verrill Wildlife Sanctuary, used last year.

Marin Audubon Society will co-sponsor, with College of Marin and the national Audubon group, the Audubon Screen Tours 1960-61, a program at Olney Hall, College of Marin, starting in October and open to the public through purchase of season tickets for individuals and family groups. Information is available from Adult Education, College of Marin, Kentfield.

A donation of $500 has been sent to the National Audubon Society for the Aubrey Drury Memorial Audubon Camp Scholarships for 1960, Mrs. Dunshee reported.

Mrs. Dunshee said two awards of scholarships have gone to Marjorie at Samuel P. Taylor State Park, and Walter E. Benson, teacher at the Santa Venetia School who has assisted at Samuel P. Taylor State Park during summers.

Initial meeting of the Marin society under its new officers and directors will be Sept. 3. The directors will meet Aug. 21.

Field trips will continue during the summer months on July 9, at College of Marin Circle at 8 a.m. to visit Doran Park; and on Aug. 6, meeting at the Ft. Baker tunnel entrance at 8:30 a.m. to visit Rodeo Lagoon.

Lesson Subject

"Is the Universe, Including Man, Evolved by Atomic Force?" is the subject of the lesson-sermon to be read at Christian Science services tomorrow in Marin.

Development Unit Studies Labor Report

A committee formed by the Marin Industrial Development Foundation met yesterday to determine the basis of a recent report by the Marin County Labor Council that many union members find housing too costly for them to live in Marin County.

The committee decided to compare cost figures on land, development, materials, utilities and labor in five Bay Area counties: Marin, San Mateo, Santa Clara, Contra Costa and Sonoma. A second meeting will be called by chairman Byron W. Leydecker, manager of the San Rafael branch of Crocker-Anglo National Bank, when committee members have obtained the figures.

The committee, formed at the request of the Marin County Board of Supervisors includes Frank W. Boileau, Fairfax Lumber Co.; Carl Brown, Associated Home Builders; Rolfe C. Crocker, Pacific Coast Title Co.; Carlos Gonzales, engineer; Reuben W. Kaehler, general contractor; Edwin C. M. Lee, Latipac-Perini Co., and Robert Roumiguere, realty broker.

Terra Lindans File Articles To Incorporate

Articles have been filed with the California secretary of state in Sacramento for incorporation on a non-profit basis of the Terra Linda Homeowners Assn.

Listed as directors are Mrs. William R. Davies of 206 Oleander Drive, Mrs. Raymond T. Hughes of 453 Hickory Lane and Phillip Zito of 616 White-wood Drive.

Mrs. Hughes said that the move resulted from a recent drive for new members, as well as growing interest in such problems as the question of annexation to San Rafael's city limits. The organization, however, has taken no stand on annexation.

Vet Insurance Change Allowed

Veterans of the Korean war who hold veterans special term insurance policies may exchange these for new convertible term policies at the same face value but with much lower premium payments.

This was the reminder today from Marin County Veterans Service Officer W. P. (Doc) Duhamel.

Duhamel said the exchange was made possible by a recent law, but about 285,000 Korean veterans still have not taken advantage of it.

Gets Commission

Roger J. Austin, son of William E. Austin of 25 Ridge Avenue, San Rafael, has received an Air Force commission as second lieutenant and a B.S. in metallurgical engineering from Stanford University.

$760,000 Sewer Plant Planned By District

San Rafael Sanitation District will go ahead with development plans for a $760,000 treatment plant to serve an anticipated population of 24,000 in the McNear's Ranch area.

The sanitation district commissioners gave the go-ahead on the plans at a meeting Thursday. The design and financing of the plant will be worked out by the engineers and the county counsel. The commission asked that reports on design and financing be submitted at the next meeting, July 7.

The sharing of cost must be worked out between Latipac-Perini developers of Marin Bay (formerly Riviera Marin), and the sanitation district. The plant will be located north of China Camp.

Action on the sanitation district's budget for the coming year was postponed until the July meeting. The new budget proposal calls for a total expenditure of $163,108, about $11,000 more than what will be spent this fiscal year.

The past year's tax rate was 38 cents per $100 assessed value. Asst. Auditor Michael Mitchell says that the new budget proposal would require a 3-cent increase to 41 cents. However, if the commission wants to hold the line, it could be done in this way:

About $78,000 in construction fund reserve would be carried over into the new fiscal year. About $12,000 of that could be used for construction needs for the new fiscal year, thus reducing the construction reserve to about $66,000.

Center Appoints Camp Counselors

Counselors have been appointed for the 1960 day camp season at the Marin Jewish Community Center.

Senior counselors will include Thea Bama of Mill Valley and Jack Jonas, San Francisco public school teacher, assisted by three high school graduates: Judy Yaffee of San Anselmo, Paul Mamalakis of Ross and Susan Detweiler of San Anselmo.

Mrs. Sanford Byers of San Rafael, teacher with the Ross Valley Nursery School, will be head counselor in the preschool group for the first three weeks of camp, to be followed during the final six weeks by Mrs. Jay Hutchinson of the Terra Linda Nursery School, assisted by Erica Wachs of Mill Valley, a freshman at the University of California.

Woman Drives Off; Now Due In Court

Mrs. Doris Claire Olsen, 31, of 323 San Francisco Boulevard, San Anselmo, is scheduled to appear in Marin Municipal Court Monday on suspicion of drunken driving and hit-run driving in San Rafael yesterday.

Police Officer Eugene Frederick used a siren and red lights to stop Mrs. Olsen in the 1900 block of Fourth Street about 2 a.m. The right front fender of her car was crushed against the tire, and the tire was smoking, he reported.

Police said witnesses saw Mrs. Olsen's car hit a parked auto at Fourth and Cijos Streets. The collision also damaged a mailbox at the corner. The parked car was registered to John Ernest O'Shaughnessy of 47 Bret Avenue, San Rafael. Police say Mrs. Olsen was heading toward San Anselmo when patrol cars intercepted her.

Try Treating Dad Like A Regular Human Being

Fathers are people, regular human beings who like to be treated like human beings.

This information may come as a shock to some family members who look on dad only as the goose that lays the golden egg—or maybe just a goose. But when Father's Day comes it might help family relations considerably if the rest of the household, especially the junior members, would pause long enough to take a good look at the "old man."

He may not be handsome, and at times when business and financial problems are pressing him, he may not be as agreeable as he means to be. But he's still a pretty nice guy.

Why not treat him with the consideration he deserves on Father's Day and then do the same thing the rest of the year?

Dad will appreciate it and home life will be much more pleasant for everybody.

Banquets And Brickbats

BOUQUETS to all of the graduates, elementary school, high school, junior college and college. Their battle for an education was illustrated by the awarding of a sheepskin to a San Rafael High School boy who completed his studies while confined to a Vallejo hospital, sometimes in an iron lung, sometimes in traction. We're proud of all of them. But don't forget fellows and gals, paraphrasing Captain Henry, "It's only the commencement, O-N-L-Y The Commencement."

A BOUQUET to Harry Albert for his latest contribution to the improvement of San Rafael's Fourth Street.

When he first announced plans for remodelling the former Oldham Pharmacy structure at Fourth and Cijos, we could not imagine how the old eyesore could be made presentable without tearing it down and starting over. Now that it is taking shape, we see it is going to be a credit to the county's main shopping street.

AND BOUQUETS TOO, to the other Fourth Street Merchants who have spent more than five million dollars in the last four years to make their town more attractive. They've done it, too.

A BRICKBAT to District Attorney W. O. Weissich for his coy attitude about the possibility of his retirement by August 1. If it's true, he ought to say so. If it's not true, he ought to say so. As a public employee, he should give proper notice to his employers, the people who elected him, so they can be considering a replacement—whether it's the man Weissich wants or not.

A BOUQUET to Linda Willson of Inverness, queen of the West Marin Junior Livestock Show in Pt. Reyes Station later this month, to her princess, Rici Elston of Bodega, and to all those responsible for completing the new pole barn in which the livestock exhibits of the 4-H Club and Future Farmers of America will be exhibited.

A BRICKBAT to whoever has torn up the intersection at the main entrance to Greenbrae subdivision, taking down the left turn signals and creating a serious traffic hazard in the process.

A BOUQUET to Mrs. Clyde G. Dunham, teacher in Sausalito's Central School, who is retiring after 17 years instructing the first graders there. She taught third and fourth grades for 14 years before that. We like to see first, second and third grade teachers stick to the job for years, because they are the ones who give our children their basic education.

A BOUQUET to Lawrence Weissberg who has just purchased Sausalito Savings and Loan. Now we hope he moves to Marin from San Francisco so he knows how we live so pleasurably.

RUNNING AWAY SETTLES NOTHING

There's no escaping taxes even in a jungle. When a man in Nigeria saw the tax collector approaching his village, he headed for the woods.

In his hurry to get away, however, he got caught in one of his own game traps. The only person in sight was the tax man. So he had to call to him to free him—and then pay up.

It usually seems easier to run away from responsibilities, especially the unpleasant ones. But more often than not, this is merely jumping from the frying pan into the fire. The quicker we face up to the obligations that both God and man rightfully expect us to fulfill the more effective we will become in settling problems both small and great.

When you have mastered this lesson yourself, you will be better able to lighten the burdens of others. You can show them how to meet and cope with difficulties that only grow more formidable when evaded or deliberately dodged.

"He who is unjust in a very little thing is unjust also in much."

(Luke 16:10)

Help me to help others for Your sake, O loving Savior.

SPEAKING OF SUMMITS

WHO'S FOR GERRYMANDERING?

Parties Seek Control Of Redistricting

By Congressional Quarterly
WASHINGTON—The political complexion of the U.S. House of Representatives for the decade ahead may be decided in this year's contests for state legislatures throughout the nation—even more than in the 1960 Congressional elections themselves.

When the official results of the 1960 Census are released later this year, population experts expect to see a change which will require increases in the number of congressmen from six states, including California, and decreases in the House representation of 13 other states.

Under a 1929 law, congressional seats are reallocated after every census to give each state its fair share of representatives according to population.

POLITICIANS IN Washington and the various state capitals are keeping a keen eye on the state legislature elections this year, because the party that controls a state legislature can control redistricting for congressional seats within the state.

Traditionally, the party controlling the legislature sees to it that the congressional seats are so molded, contorted and stretched across the map—this is called "gerrymandering"—that the opposition party's strength is held to an absolute minimum.

IN CALIFORNIA, for ex-

CALIFORNIA DUE 7 CONGRESS SEATS

By Congressional Quarterly
California currently has 30 seats in Congress, an allotment which has been in effect since the 1950 census. The Census Bureau estimates that the state will gain seven seats following the 1960 census.

Any redistricting plan must be approved by the state legislature. It is presently strongly Democratic. Half of the Senate is up for re-election in 1960, and all of the Assembly faces the voters this year. The next election for governor will be in 1962. Incumbent Gov. Edmund G. Brown is a Democrat.

ample, Democrats are planning a field day. The state is slated to pick up seven new Congressmen after the census, and will be a choice prize in the redistricting battles. Democrats hope to retain control of the legislature through this year's elections and then carve up the state to their own benefit in 1961. The only Republican hope is to regain control of the California House so that they can exercise a veto over Democratic redistricting plans. It is not possible for Republicans to gain control of the Senate.

Another heated redistricting fight is anticipated in Massachusetts, a state slated to lose two seats. Democrats now control both the governorship and both houses of the legislature, and if they can maintain their control through the 1960 election, they expect to even up for GOP gerrymanders of recent decades.

Unless the states redraw their district lines before 1962, all of their congressmen will be forced to run in the state at-large. Professional politicians seek to avoid at-large elections, in which many veteran congressmen, unknown outside their own districts, can be defeated.

Election Results Puzzle Democrats

By CHAPIN A. DAY

Results of the June 7 election are causing leading Marin Democrats to scratch their heads, puzzled.

The results have also developed schisms in the party which need mending if the party expects to do well in this area in November.

Study of the precinct returns has made Democratic leaders wonder if there is any communication at all between the organizational heads of the party and the party members.

For example, the Marin results show in strongly Democratic precincts:

That conservative J. Walter Blair counted some of his greatest majorities over liberal Vera Schultz.

That Everett A. Matzen, labor's candidate for Assembly, wracked up his largest number of votes over the California Democratic Council-endorsed Joseph G. Wilson.

That Supervisor William Fusselman, an advocate of local government control, had the greatest vote advantage over Frederic Kerr, who helped compile the unsuccessful county charter giving stronger, centralized control.

Democratic leaders who don't think these ways are wondering who's leading whom?

THAT'S NOT all of the problems from the election for the Democratic leaders.

The labor leaders who guided Matzen's successful bid for the party nomination, after the CDC turned him down cold, are now demanding that the party get behind his candidacy—or else.

The "or else," so we have been led to understand, means that if the party doesn't get behind Matzen, a resident of Petaluma, labor will refuse to get behind Rep. Clement W. Miller's re-election.

This could be serious for Miller. His major support has been in the strongly labor areas like Eureka, Mendocino and Sonoma Counties.

With aspirant Fred Dupuis making a fine showing in the primaries, loss of labor support—if they go through with it—could be fatal.

THERE ALSO IS a battle raging within the state party leadership which has come down to the local level.

The fight between state committeeman Paul Ziffren and Gov. Edmund G. Brown's candidate to succeed Ziffren, Stanley Mosk, has divided loyalties of Marin Democrats.

Some feel Brown is attempting to grab complete control of the party, while others, including state committeewoman Elizabeth Smith, are backing the "consolidation" of Democratic power for the November election.

The Brown-antiBrown battle may also break out among the elected delegates to the Democratic convention, who are meeting today in Sacramento.

A BIG QUESTION being asked these days is: What will Vera Schultz do now?

The question may be premature; she still has six more months in office as a supervisor.

There seems to be a definite attempt under way to toward getting her an appointment from Governor Brown, whether she has anything to do with it or not.

In the state housing program, perhaps?

WHAT OUR READERS SAY

Supervisors Must Build Hospital

EDITOR,
Independent-Journal:

You editorially commented the other day that our failure to vote the County Hospital bonds complicates matters for the Board of Supervisors. I think, to the contrary, that their problem is much simplified and their consciences should be much relieved by the dictate of the voters. Let us simplify the situation:

1. Our Marin County people who are old, sick and broke are housed in a building condemned as not fit to live in.

2. The state has said that Marin County must take care of these people.

3. Marin can "farm" them out to other counties or to private hospitals and institutions. The cost of this is fantastic.

4. Or, Marin can build a new hospital, paying for it by:

(a) Bonds. This is the cheapest method. It was just turned down by the electorate.

(b) A "Lease-Purchase" deal with private parties. This will cost Marin at least $300,000 more in the long run than bonds.

(c) Direct taxes.

(a) has been squelched. (c) is obviously politically impossible. So the supervisors will have to obey the state's order by a deal that will cost our short-sighted voters a lot of unnecessary money, namely (b).

Just think what could have been done with that $300,000!

So much for the dollars and cents side of the County Hospital.

May I venture the currently unpopular comment that to an outsider looking at the late election Marin County must look pretty shabby.

Important Thing Is Not Tax Rate But Amount District Spends

Public service is often a thankless job, but most public officials here are doing conscientious work, sometimes against unfair criticism.

But once in a while, you come across some bureaucrat who seems to think that the budget is something that should be worked out in private and presented to the public after all the raises and cuts have been made.

Just the other day, while touring the county, we ran across this complaint from a public official: "Gee, they announced the new salary raise recommendations when we haven't even decided on it yet!"

That's like saying, "Gee, the public knows where we might spend its money even before we've had a chance to spend it."

FORTUNATELY, MOST districts and municipalities announce the proposed raises and cuts, then hold budget hearings, thus giving the public some idea of how its money may be disbursed. All of this comes, as it should, before the various outlays are made, the budget set, and the tax rate fixed.

The tax rate itself is a tricky thing. Just because your district board (school, city, sanitary, fire, etc.) announces proudly it is "holding the tax rate to last year's" that doesn't mean necessarily call for a celebration. You may get socked with a bigger tax bill than last year. Here's why:

For simplification, take this example. Assume your property was worth $1,000 assessed value last year and the tax rate was $1 per $100. You paid $10 in tax.

NOW, AS IN many parts of the state, assessed values are rising. Assume your assessed value went up to $1,500 this year. Your local board announces bravely it is "holding the tax rate to $1 again this year." But what we tend to forget is that the same $1 rate this year will mean a tax of $15. Your board, which had $10 revenue last year, now has $15 with which to run the district, all without raising the rate one cent.

Therefore, the important question is, how much money your district needs on which to operate for the coming year. Last year it got by with $10. Does it need more this year, and if so, how much? If it can get by for $10, the tax rate can be cut to 66 cents. If it needs $15 this year, the rate will remain at $1. If the district needs $20 this year, the rate will have to go to $1.33.

WHEN A WOUNDED taxpayer comes hollering, the easy thing for the district official to say is, "Well, we kept the same tax rate, but your tax went up because the assessor raised assessed values." What the official really means is, "The assessor raised values to present levels and we knew we were getting more income. But we kept the same rate because we needed more to spend. That's why your tax rate is up."

Quite complicated? No, elementary, my dear Wat-san, especially when it hits you in the pocketbook.

AT THE DEMO RALLY at Roger Kent's estate before election, they all stood in line to pay their admission.

Waiting patiently in line with the rest of them, with dollar bill in hand, was Roger Kent.

TRY AND STOP ME

BENNETT CERF

Humor is a tricky thing to define, but that never seems to stop the experts from trying. "Humor can be dissected," warns E. B. White, "as a frog can, but the thing dies in the process and the innards are discouraging to any but the pure scientific mind." "Every time I've tried to explain just what humor means to me," adds Dorothy Parker, "I had to go and lie down with a cold wet cloth on my head."

Old Master P. C. Wodehouse told Researcher Bill Cole, "The difference between wit and humor beats me and has always beat me. Sometimes I think I've got it, and then suddenly everything goes black."

Ogden Nash polishes off the subject with,

In this foolish world there is nothing more numerous

Than different people's senses of humorous.

2 Answers To Question: Should Little Theater Be Work Or Fun?

FROM THE standpoint of the cast, what is the proper purpose of a little theater program?

The question comes to mind after attending and wholeheartedly enjoying the Cove Players' performance of "An Inspector Calls" at the Tiburon Playhouse last Saturday night.

It's an amateur production. And yet it has considerable professional polish. And largely responsible for that professional look is the director, Dr. Earle M. Marsh.

Which recalls to mind a comment from a member of the cast of an earlier Marsh-directed play at the close of its run.

That amateur actor, who shall remain nameless for obvious reasons, made it known in no uncertain terms that he would not again seek a role in a Marsh play. He made it equally clear that the assertion was in no way a criticism of the director's ability. Far from it. For, in fact, he had the highest regard for Dr. Marsh's competence.

But, he explained, he just hadn't enjoyed his work in the play.

"It's all business with Dr. Marsh," he declared. "We worked too hard. And there just wasn't any fun in it."

This, he contended, would be all right with a troupe of young actors with professional aspirations. "But with most of us, acting is strictly a hobby," he said. "And hobbies should relax and entertain you, not task you."

But another thespian with experience under Dr. Marsh disagrees with those contentions.

It's true that there is no horsing around when Dr. Marsh is directing," he says. "He's a perfectionist."

"But that doesn't mean that working in one of his plays is unrewarding. In fact the satisfaction you receive from being part of a project which you know is truly well done is far more satisfying than the fun you might have had under a less demanding director. And there is considerable prestige in having appeared in a Marsh production. These are factors that give even an amateur actor a lot of pleasure, and certainly make the hard work seem worthwhile."

As for the hobby aspect, he notes that "gardening, too, can be hard work. Yet for the person who likes it, despite the physical exertion, it is a change of pace from everyday activity and a means of relaxation."

So there you have it. Both sides of the question, from the standpoint of the actors.

From the audience's view, there is no questioning the value of Dr. Marsh's approach to his directing duties. It's a big plus. The result, inevitably, is a high quality entertainment that few other directors can attain from a cast largely without professional experience.

"An Inspector Calls" is a splendid example of Dr. Marsh's fine talent at work. His sensitive direction is apparent at all stages. This is particularly true of the pace of this play which is heavy on dialogue and could bog down if that danger were not foreseen. But the Cove Players' version is fast moving and lively. And interesting from start to finish.

You will have your last opportunity to see it when the curtain goes up (figuratively speaking, for no curtain is used) at 8:30 this evening for the closing performance.

We advise you to see it. Watch for Dr. Marsh's fine touches and for the evidence of the hard work he demands from his cast in preparation for a play. You will have no difficulty recognizing them. And also pay particular attention to the work of a young woman named Mary Severson. She makes a very pretty Sheila Birling. And the night we were there, she played her

His Humor's Both Hip And Healthy

Lord Buckley Doesn't Dig The Fad For Sick Comedy

By DON KEOWN

The practitioners of sick comedy are not true humorists. For real humor is a pure and healthy thing.

This is the opinion of a veteran nightclub, stage and television comic who now makes his home in San Rafael and who has established himself as one of the Bay Area's most unusual and refreshing humorists.

He is Lord H. R. H. (for His Royal Highness) Buckley, who with his wife, Lady Buckley, their two children, and their frequent guests from the entertainment world reside in a large hillside house at 183 Prospect in San Rafael.

His title, Buckley freely admits, "is a philosophical one."

Buckley is not manor born, or even English born. He was born Richard Buckley in Tolumne in this state, the son of a mining engineer.

AFTER SIX years in Tolumne, he spent the remainder of his boyhood in Stockton.

His first work was in the lumber camps of California. And, he admits, as a boy and during his early youth he had no idea of choosing the stage or comedy as his future career.

Then came a trip that was to change his life. At 20 he went to Texas to join a brother who had oil interests there. And there he met a Texan who interested him in show business. The two formed an act and made their first appearance in San Antonio's old Aztec Theater.

That was 34 years ago.

And since then, Buckley has been playing nightspots and theaters across the country.

He has also appeared on some of the nation's top television and radio shows.

It is his estimate—"as conservative as I ever am about anything"—that he has given more than 20,000 shows or performances during his career.

NIGHTCLUBS where he has entertained include such big ones as the Latin Quarter in New York, the Chase Hotel in St. Louis, El Rancho in Vegas, and Bimbo's in San Francisco.

He has appeared on the stage of the Roxy and Palace theaters in New York, the Oriental in Chicago, and scores of others.

Nine times he has been on Ed Sullivan's television show. He has also appeared with Milton Berle and with other big names.

He has recorded and his latest long-player, "Far Out Humor—Lord Buckley," on the World-Pacific label, is selling well.

He has also written, and his latest book, "Hiperama of the Classics," is being published this month by City Lights.

At present the regal comic is appearing Thursday, Friday and Saturday nights at the new Palo Alto spot, Outside at the Inside.

Buckley's stock in trade is the translation of classics—Shakespeare, Poe, etc.—and even Biblical stories into hip talk which he rattles off at a machine gun clip.

For the uninitiated, or square, the results can only be termed downright confusing.

But, says Buckley, certain groups understand "or dig" him well.

The intellectuals find his brand of humor especially appealing, he says. So does the younger set including teen-agers whose own jive jargon sometimes reflects a strong hip influence. And the beatniks, of course, find that his royal highness is talking their own tongue.

BUCKLEY SEES nothing irreverent in his translations of Biblical stories.

"I am the only comic who brings the word of Christ into the nightclubs," he says. "And the more people who are exposed to that Message, no matter where they are, the better."

What he tries to do is act the part of a hip-talking preacher who tries to put the stories into the language his hipster flock can best understand and appreciate.

He stresses that he does not satirize or change the stories factually.

Nor does he alter their moral lessons.

"The words are different, but the meaning is still there," he says.

To Buckley the theater is itself "a religious movement."

He explains: "Its purpose is an uplifting one through education and entertainment. And when it succeeds, it cleanses and renews."

And that, he adds, is why he frowns on the new fad for sick humor.

THIS, HE says, defeats the true purpose of humor. It does not uplift or cleanse. Instead it tears down.

"Humor should be used for beauty, not for ridicule or for other cruel purposes," he summarizes.

He quotes Lord Boothby's "humor is the only solvent of terror and tension." And Thurber's "we must realize humor is one of our greatest allies" to back up his contentions.

The cover for Buckley's album, "Far Out Humor," begins with the following discourse:

"Is the man a comic?"
"Yes."
"Hip-talk poet? Cock-eyed historian?"

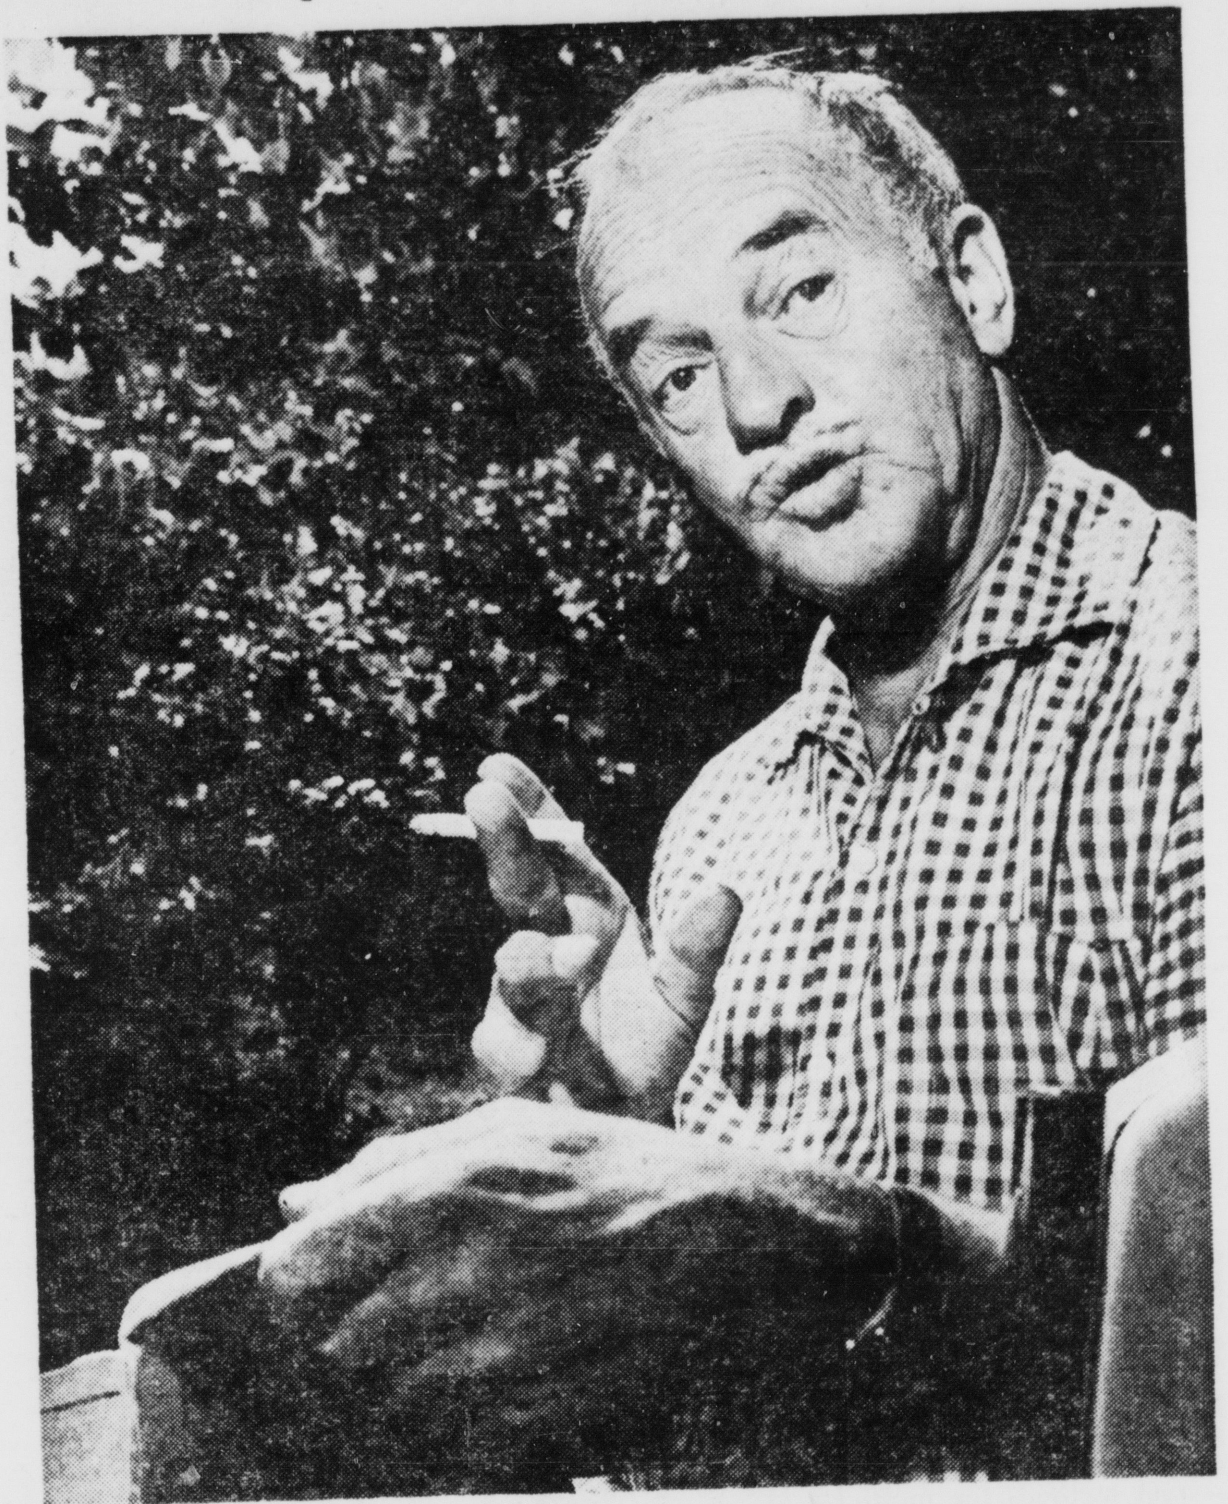

"Yes, yes."
"Prophet?"
"That too."
"Preacher?"

"Amen."
"That's not a likely combination."

"Nor is Lord Buckley."
It goes on to assert that "in an age worshipping the negation with a humor that is sick, sick, sick, Lord Buckley insists on being triumphant, joyous, positive, proclaiming himself the poet of the well, well, well."

Another description of the comic:

"Lord Buckley is a monologist, poet, apocalyptic sweet-swinging vanguardist of jive talk. He does for the English language what Chaplin does for pantomime."

AT HIS SAN RAFAEL home, Lord H.R.H. Buckley works on a translation of a classic into jive lingo. The hipster talk is the trademark of the nightspot comic who has played some of the biggest nightclubs, theaters and television shows in the nation. (Independent-Journal photo)

BUT WHAT Buckley is proudest of is a fan note from Henry Miller written after the author had listened to one of his lordship's recordings. "What a treat to hear your new shatterbusting record delivered like a true hipster a la Paganini, Gilles de Rais and Marquis of Queensbury," wrote Miller. "Your 'God's Own Drink' is a classic—far out."

Buckley confesses himself to be baffled as to why so many of today's younger comedians have chosen the sick humor field.

"To me it's humor off balance," he says. "The field of humor is wide open with plenty of material without resorting to such sadism."

While Buckley's career as an entertainer has been a restless one that has seen him constantly on the go, ranging far and wide, he now believes that in Marin he has found a

Tips on Purchase and Home Care of Your Wardrobe

By Bert Brown, Marin Cleaners of San Rafael and Bel Aire

"CARE OF YOUR VALUABLE FURS"

Once again I was talking with my furrier friend (Harold Asher of San Francisco) and the topic of furs and fur care were again taken up in our conversation.

"Do you know Bert," I was told, "that surveys have shown that one woman in ten takes care of her furs . . . that is gives them the same care and consideration that she gives her coiffure . . . her gowns . . . and her apparel in general."

"This lack of care is the greatest instrument to depreciation of value . . . let alone the loss to her fine fur piece of its lustre . . . its form of fashion and the artisanship that the 'furrier' created with painstaking great skill . . . and no small effort."

"For instance . . . the average mink stole that is the prized possession in milady's wardrobe has considerable value . . . The stole contains many pelts and outside and inside edges . . . 'guard hair' and 'under-fur' . . . when soil stains, foreign matter, dampness, etc., are allowed to accumulate the tendency towards 'rubbed area' the 'mussed up look' are greatly increased by this condition and soon 'bare spots' occur . . . and if left 'hanging' in a warm area the tendency to be 'food for moths' is also increased."

"The guard hair and under fur should be 'free flowing' so that any movement of air or wind ever so slight would cause the fur to be free and flexible."

Our methods of "furrier technique" with the modern chemistry of cleaning-glazing and polishing the many new colors in natural furs are most thorough and satisfying.

Give your "valuable furs" a thought . . . give them the able care by a "technician" they deserve and you will be rewarded with their longer life . . . "newer look" and protect your "fur investment."

Should you have any "fur question" . . . just call or write us . . . We will pleasure in answering.

ALL DOLLED UP, Lord Buckley is ready to make one of his regal appearances before a nightclub audience. He admits frankly that his title "is a philosophical one" and adds that "we are all really lords and ladies."

STEREO HI-FI

By C. J. Catania
Audio Engineer

Beginning June 5th, stereo radio broadcast tests will be made under the supervision of the National Stereophonic Radio Committee. These tests are an active part of the FCC research to gather data on the operational characteristics of the several methods for multiplexed stereocasts. One test site is KDKA in Pittsburgh. Two other test sites have been chosen. The test data will be used by FCC to make final decisions and rulings on which multiplex system shall be used.

As some of you know, one of our largest commercial manufacturers finally placed on the market a tape-cartridge type tape recorder. An unsuccessful try was made by this same company in 1958. It seems that last month, this major company decided to quit producing the cartridge type tape recorder. As our customers know, we have never sold either the tape cartridge type recorders nor the tape-cartridges, because we have always been firm believers that for high quality reproduction of music, the reel-to-reel standard recorder operating at the standard 7½ ips tape speed is a wiser investment.

More and more 4-track tapes are becoming available. We have just received the Medallion releases. They are really superb.

If you are contemplating an addition to your music system, I suggest a 4-track tape recorder. Drop into our Stereo, Hi-Fi store. Deal with Audio Specialists instead of with counter clerks and you will be guided into making Sound Investments.

BUCKLEY IS A VETERAN guest on the Ed Sullivan television show. He has appeared on the program nine times. Here he is shown with the television personality and newspaper columnist during one of those appearances.

Humor Is The Only Thing That Lord Buckley's Serious About

Continued from age M5 permanent home and has settled down.

He enjoys his work at the Outside at the Inside. It is a unique nightspot in that no alcoholic beverages are sold. Coffee is the strongest drink you can purchase on the premises.

Intellectuals and the college kids throng there. And Buckley finds them a most receptive audience.

HE SHARES program honors with jazz musicians, and finds that a natural combination. "I have an affinity with jazz," he says. "The same people who like me also generally like jazz music."

In his own act Buckley does a bit of singing of popular ballads.

But it is his fluency with the jive talk that makes his act.

He will start off talking a kind of actorish-lectionary English with arched eyebrows. And, then, boom, he hits his audience with a flow of hip talk. Then out of it. Then back in again.

The Gettysburg address will sound something like this in part:

"... and solid sent upon the ace lick that all cats and kittens, red white or blue, are created equal in front ..."

Or a translation of Poe: "... gone full out, I flung the shutter when with many a flip and flutter in there stomped a king-size bugbird, Jack from way back days of yore ..."

Along with his Palo Alto shows, Lord Buckley currently sandwiches in some occasional engagements at an Oakland tavern, the Gold Nugget, "it's small, but they really listen," and at the Coffee Gallery in the heart of San Francisco's Beatnikville.

At the Coffee Gallery his audiences are 70 per cent beatnik. And Buckley has nothing but praise for the beats as listeners.

"THEY MAKE a fine and sensitive audience," he says. "They understand and they follow what I am saying."

Now 54 and with three and a half decades in show business behind him, his lordship has no regrets as to his choice of a career.

"Comedy is the only thing I've been able to take seriously," he asserts.

He recalls that his father once determined to make a cabinetmaker out of him. "But when I became so bored that I fell asleep at the work bench and cut the end off one of my fingers, he gave up his crusade," he says.

"And it was all for the best. Whoever heard of a hip-talking cabinetmaker?"

The impression is that, trip to Texas or no trip to Texas, the young Buckley, sooner or later, would have found the profession for which he is best suited—entertainment.

He's a natural showman.

And he wouldn't be happy at anything else.

The Ensemble's The Thing

Students At Music Co-Op Benefit From Opportunity To Play Together

Working together in a school atmosphere offers the best possible environment for young students who are beginning the study of music.

That is the opinion of a group of Marin music teachers.

The result has been the development of the Creative Music School in San Rafael.

There several teachers work together on a cooperative basis, planning and initiating interesting and different music study and programs.

One of the big advantages of their cooperative effort, they say, is the possibilities it affords for ensemble instruction for the students.

They hold that music students, studying in small groups of three, four or five pupils, acquire a musical sense of group playing and are able to participate in duets, trios and quartets in their earliest lessons.

Intermediate and advance students also benefit, it is said, from the exposure to ensemble work as they learn to become aware of and recognize the intricate moments and movements which arise during an ensemble selection.

Guest instructors and regular staff members participate along with students in ensemble programs.

This summer classes are being offered in the violin, recorder, guitar and piano.

Mrs. Anabel Barahal of Mill Valley is the violin instructor. She has studied in Europe, New York and Michigan, including two years at the Julliard School of Music and a year and a half at the University of Michigan.

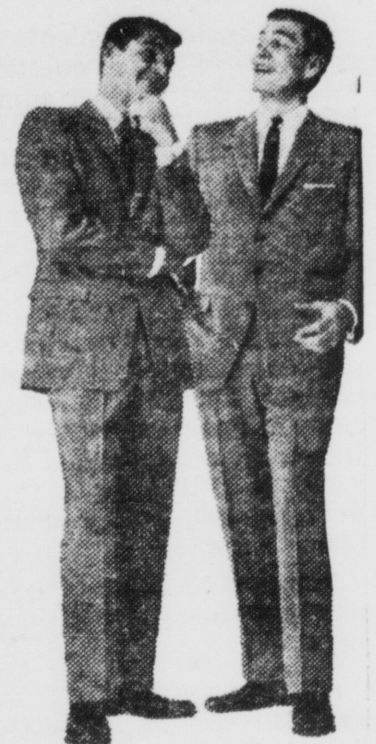

Leo E. Christiansen of Sausalito, the recorder instructor, is well known in Marin for his work with groups and individual students on this ancient "flute" instrument. He will teach classes in all ages and in the beginning, intermediate and advanced classifications.

Glen Carlson of San Rafael will teach guitar and also will provide instruction for all ages. He recently directed a folk music workshop for adults at the College of Marin. And in July he will direct guitar classes for all ages under San Rafael Recreation Department sponsorship. He is well known for his ability as a guitarist, and for his large repertoire of folk songs.

Mrs. Shirley Carlson, director of the school, will double as the piano instructor. She has worked with the Marin Junior Music Club.

Students Talk—And Educators Listen

Former Tam Pupils Give Their Views

When college students speak out these days, people are more inclined to listen than in some other eras when swallowing goldfish or acquiring a raccoon coat seemed to be the chief campus concerns.

When college students respond readily to questions asked by their former administrators and counselors, the educators listen because the former students are more than willing to give their views on, among many things, their college preparation.

Two teams of Tamalpais Union High School District staff members spent a day each at Stanford University and the Davis campus of the University of California. Next year they'll visit U. C. at Berkeley and San Francisco State.

They asked a lot of questions and they got a lot of answers.

AT STANFORD one day were Director of Instruction Robert D. Torrey, Principal Richard L. Campion of Tamalpais, Principal Donald Kreps of Redwood, and counselors Elizabeth Harper of Drake, Charles C. Crawford of Tamalpais, and Merrill Convis of Redwood.

Interviews at Davis were conducted by Director of Guidance Eunice E. Reader, Principal Kreps, and counselors Mardys Whiteman of Redwood, Victor H. Rowe of Tamalpais, and Robert J. Maher of Drake.

"My physics and chemistry preparation were especially good," said Karr Wolfe, son of Mr. and Mrs. John Wolfe, Kentfield. "I was glad I had a lot of essay writing in English, too. We write a lot here." Wolfe, who had attended Redwood and Drake, is a pre-medical student.

"More reading, to give us a wider frame of reference," recommended Stanford student Dave Schmidt, son of Dr. and Mrs. David Schmidt of Larkspur and a Drake graduate. "Lack of note-taking practice is another handicap, a universal one around here."

Judy Webb, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Wayne H. Webb, of Kentfield, said she had a "good background" at Drake and Redwood "in what I had."

"Now," she added, "I realize I could have learned more in high school if I had studied harder. Solid geometry, incidentally, was interesting but not worthwhile."

"I DISAGREE," said Tam

graduate Robert Watkins, son of Dr. Robert P. Watkins of Belvedere. "Geometry was a big help for chemistry, but it might be better to incorporate solid geometry with plane geometry in high school."

"I wish I had taken physics," said Judy. "I guess my best preparation was in English."

R. Todd Cory, a Drake graduate from Ross, had just passed his dental school examination. He had a lot to say about education and its philosophy.

"Too many facts in high school," he said. "Here they want you to be aware of many things. On my dental exam I was asked about current events, philosophy, creative arts, and how I get along with people. We must be aware of our position in the world, aware of the world we live in."

There's too much technological emphasis.

"I never liked English before. Now I'm doing a lot of outside reading and I like it. It helps me to understand many things. Sure, you must have factual knowledge, but the broad concepts are important."

Judy Webb disagreed. "I believe the opposite. There are too many broad ideas going around in my head. I need facts to support them."

CORY RAISED his hand. "I'd like to say something about the science program at Drake. After four years here, I think I learned 85 per cent what I know about science in high school. Except for biology, I think I could have done as well on the dental exam, the science part, when I got here."

Cory's last word of advice: "Write, write, write! More essay exams. We have to know how to arrange ideas. It's hard. It's probably a big-

But there's no other way."

Students at Stanford came in all day long. They seemed happy to see representatives of their former high schools, and acted as if they were coming home. And they all wanted to talk.

"A broader general background is what I needed," said senior Jack Clumek, son of Mr. and Mrs. Jack R. Clumek of Ross. A Drake graduate, he had spent a term at Stanford's Stuttgart, Germany, campus. His sister Jill, Stanford freshman, had been in earlier.

"I'm more materialistic," commented Fred A. Diercks, another Drake graduate, son of Mr. and Mrs. Fred Diercks of San Anselmo. "I want more courses like calculus."

"I THINK WE need more periods in high school or be allowed to take some classes only two or three times a week," Mary Cummings, Drake graduate, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. John C. Cummings of Greenbrae, said.

All of the students agreed that they had plenty of time to work harder while in high school had they wanted to. All agreed that learning to type prior to college was essential.

At Davis the conversation was pretty much the same. Stephanie Kapousove, Tam graduate, of Corte Madera, thought one was too suddenly on his own in college.

"It's up to you to do everything for yourself here," she said.

She also thought her high school preparation compared with the best in the state, comparing herself with other students.

"The high schools should stress more writing," said Paulina Stevens, Drake graduate, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. W. A. Stevens of San Rafael.

THEY DIDN'T work us hard enough in high school," Arleigh Williams, formerly of Fairfax, said.

"I can't tell the difference between the work here and at high school," countered Robin Dinklespiel, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Richard C. Dinklespiel of Kentfield. Robin attended Drake for three years.

"I wouldn't have wanted to work harder then," said Homer Malaby, son of Mr. and Mrs. N. E. Malaby of San Anselmo, "but now I know it was too easy for college prep students."

Wilson Goddard, a Tam graduate, son of Dr. Wilson Goddard, had ideas on many subjects.

"I got poor grades in high school. It was due to my own lack of enthusiasm. I was too independent and too stubborn. I'm paying for it now. It's difficult to instill young people with the idea that they have to plan for their future.

"I think mathematics should be stressed more. Students need a better grasp of math. This is the area where college admissions officers are looking more and more.

"I'M A BUG on engineers knowing more of the practical subject matter. Too many of them can't see the application of the theories they learn. There has to be a better understanding between the craftsman and the engineer.

"I just love this place, love working and going to school. There's a lot of gratification just in that."

Many others came, both at Davis and Stanford, and they all had much to say. They contradicted one another frequently but cordially. They even contradicted themselves sometimes as they groped for answers, but they represented a source of material for high school educators not to be ignored.

As in the past five years, since the visitation program was organized by Superintendent ent Chester G. Carlisle and Director of Guidance Reader, the information was duly recorded, digested and disseminated throughout the Tam district's school system.

TAMALPAIS HIGH counselor Victor H. Rowe enjoyed a good chat with one of his former charges, Homer Malaby.

Young Malaby is now a senior at the University of California in Davis.

Plastic Surgery Comes To Aid Of A Boy With A Birth Defect

Thanks to plastic surgery a young Marin boy is free of the embarrassment caused by a birth defect.

The correction was accomplished recently at Marin General Hospital.

Michael Locatelli was born on Oct. 6, 1950, with an abnormality of the left ear.

His mother, Mrs. Ray Locatelli, says, "I noticed it as soon as he was born. I talked to our family doctor who said that we would have to wait until Mike was older for any correction. Although taping was tried on the ear, it was ineffective and the deformity remained unchanged.

THE LOCATELLIS, who live at 111 East Strawberry Drive, Mill Valley, explained to Mike, as soon as he was old enough to understand, that his ear was different from other children's and that it would require surgery. He was not only prepared for the operation, but looking forward to it as he was being teased quite a bit.

Mike's activities show, however, that he was able to stand up fairly well under this tormenting and maintain normal activities for he was and is active in Cub Scouts and Little League.

Knowing that he would have a normal left ear as soon as the time was right helped him to face better his problem.

The local plastic surgeon who first saw him in January of this year states that Mike's ear essentially required a changing of the cartilage. This was done through an incision in the back surface of the ear which conceals the scars.

After the cartilage on Mike's left ear was cut and re-shaped, it was moved about until a normal contour was accomplished. Mike's left ear now goes very well with his perfect right ear, although they are not identical. But two ears are rarely exactly alike.

USUALLY ON A 9-year-old child, an operation of this type would be done under a general anesthesia, but because Mike is such a stable child, he was operated on under a local anesthesia.

Mike's operation took place in the morning and that same evening he left Marin General wearing a large bandage which covered both ears for one week. At the end of that time bandages were removed and no restrictions except a ban on rough sports and scuffling were placed on his activities. Such violent play could forcibly pull his ear forward, it was explained. For two weeks Mike wore a stocking cap at night so that he would not injure his ear during sleep.

Mike, who enjoys perfect health, has taken all of this in his stride and is happy in his fourth grade studies at Strawberry School where he is a good student and interested in many things. Mike shows a scientific bent and, like all boys, enjoys collecting snakes, bugs and making model airplanes and cars.

The Locatellis have two other children: Margie, aged 21, who is attending beauty school, and Mary Susan, aged 13, who is an eighth grade student at the Edna Maguire School in Alto.

MRS. LOCATELLI, who has been food supervisor at Marin General Hospital for five years, has nothing but praise for the fine plastic surgery done at the hospital by the skilled local plastic surgeon.

Her husband, Ray, who is in the gardening contract business, heartily seconds her pleasure at the change in Mike's appearance.

Mike's good results should be an inspiration to parents who are faced with a similar problem, local medical authorities say.

"Otoplasty," changing the shape of ears, is a common procedure for protruding ears and can add greatly to a person's appearance. In the case of a child, it can save them much embarrassment from teasing by their friends. Marinites have the good fortune to have in their midst skilled plastic surgeons accredited by the American Board of Plastic Surgery who can make such happy endings come true as the one in the story of young Mike Locatelli.

NOW, AFTER PLASTIC surgery, Michael has a well-formed left, as well as right, ear. Here he enjoys one of his hobbies — the making of model cars while wearing his Cub Scout uniform. The plastic surgeon's skill has assured the Marin boy of the full enjoyment of a normal childhood. (Photos by George Wheeler)

THIS DRAWING BY Independent-Journal news staffer Paul Miller shows a scene familiar to many Marinites who like to ride. A registered camper is pictured opening the entrance gate to the horse camp in the Devil's Gulch area at Samuel P. Taylor Park so that an incoming trailer can pass through. The park offers Marinites one of their best riding areas in a county which numbers its horse enthusiasts by the hundreds.

Marinites Take To The Trails

Horse Enthusiasts Find The County Offers Ideal Facilities For Their Rides

By PAUL MILLER

For horse lovers, Marin County "must be the place!"

There are more than 123 miles of public riding trails through some of the most beautiful country in the world. The county has 11 organized horsemen's groups, nine stables providing either boarding facilities or horse rentals, and one of the few public horse camps in California.

The public riding trails are as convenient as they are beautiful. The entrances are close to population centers, yet the lands which can be ridden are unpopulated, free of automobiles and extensive.

The largest public riding area is the Marin Municipal Water District watershed, whose boundaries reach roughly from the edge of Mill Valley on the south to Bolinas road on the north, and from Bolinas Ridge on the west to the town of Ross on the east.

Samuel P. Taylor State Park has a limited riding area, but has the only state horse camp in the county and one of the few in the state.

James H. Green, state riding and hiking trail ranger, is responsible for 21 to 28 miles of trail, from Mountain Home at the bottom of Mt. Tamalpais to Samuel Taylor Park.

OTHER RIDING areas are a short stretch in Mt. Tamal-pais State Park and on private ranches. Many land owners in the county are unusually unselfish, and with permission, responsible riders may usually pass through.

One of the most rewarding rides is along the 21-mile state trail on Bolinas Ridge to Samuel Taylor Park.

The trail can be reached by horse trailer from Tamalpais Valley by taking the Stinson Beach road two miles to Mt. Tamalpais road and then three miles to Mountain Home and from there to Rock Springs. At that point a gate closes the road along Bolinas Ridge to automobile traffic. Here horses may be unloaded and ridden along the ridge road.

At one point during the ride an extensive view of the coastline, including Bolinas Bay and Stinson Beach, may be seen. The trail, near its end, goes down to the Paper Mill Creek level, crosses under the Shafter Bridge, comes up the old railroad grade to the Irving area and ends at Devil's Gulch Horse Camp in Samuel Taylor Park.

This trail is part of a statewide master plan of a horse trail that is hoped will eventually loop California. Other portions of the master trail will begin at San Diego, go up through the middle of the state to the Sierra Nevada, down along the coast and then curve back into itself at Antelope Valley in Los Angeles County.

DEVIL'S GULCH Horse Camp is actually the starting point for most of the Bolinas Ridge riders because of the camp's easy accessibility by car and its extensive facilities for horses and campers. The camp is off Sir Francis Drake Highway one mile west of the park's headquarters building. There is an identification sign at the turnoff.

Riders must register and pay a fee of 50 cents a head for a daytime ride or $1 for 24 hours. Organized groups may use the camp overnight for 10 cents a person, but should register a month or so ahead.

According to Assistant Park Supervisor Edward J. Nash, the camp usually is restricted to horsemen, but because of lack of interest lately, it has been open to scout camps. The camp can accommodate 40 horses and riders overnight. There are 16 box stalls (first come, first serve), five two-part corrals, water troughs and hitching posts. There are also picnic tables, restrooms, and stone barbecue pits.

The other public riding area, the water district land, has about 95 miles of trails open to horses, eight picnic grounds and three fishing lakes.

There are many feeder trails into the watershed, including those from some of the stables. One of the main entrances is from Phoenix Lake picnic grounds in Ross. It is about two miles by horse from there to Lagunitas Lake picnic grounds, which has restrooms, tables and barbecue pits, plus hitching racks and water troughs. From these grounds, connecting trails lead throughout the watershed.

Another entrance is at the start of the old Bolinas road. In earlier days this road was a stagecoach trail from Fairfax to Bolinas along what is now the bottom of Alpine Lake. The new trail leads to picnic areas on the west slope of Bolinas ridge. Dispersed along the slope of the picnic areas are Camp Potrero, Laurel Dell, Barth Retreat, Rifle Camp and Rock Springs.

AMONG THE horsemen's groups in Marin who use the trails are two official organizations as distinguished from private ones. They are the Marin County Sheriff's Posse and the 4-M Mounted Patrol.

Both aid Sheriff Louis P. Montanos as deputized sheriffs and are on 24-hour call. They serve without pay. The posse, established about 18 years ago, now has about 60 members, led by Capt. D. Frank Monte. Besides the posse's official functions, it takes pleasure rides, participates in parades and raises funds yearly for various charities.

Acting in a similar capacity, but composed of women, is the 4-M Mounted Patrol headed by Capt. Zola Peterson of Mill Valley. The organization, established in 1946, includes 25 members.

Other organizations which are not connected with local law enforcement but are part of larger organizations, are mounted scout groups—both Boy Scouts and Girl Scouts—and a mounted 4-H Club.

Mounted Cub Pack 90 meets at the Sleepy Hollow Stables in San Anselmo, and emphasizes horsemanship in addition to scout lore. Cubmaster is Jennings Smith of Corte Madera. There are 16 boys in the pack and most of them rent horses for field trips.

The mounted Boy Scouts belong to Troop 90 which also meets at Sleepy Hollow Stables. Half of the eight boys in the troop own horses. Their scoutmaster Lt. Col. Herbert Brann is stationed at Fort Mason and lives in Corte Madera. He said in the near future, the troop "because members live all over the county, will either merge with another troop or disband."

Mounted Girl Scout Troop 171, led by Mrs. Richard Henika of San Anselmo, also meets at the Sleepy Hollow Stables. The troop was formed two years ago, and most of its 23 members learned to ride after they joined the troop. Only seven own horses.

THE MARIN Mounted 4-H Club, whose community leader is Mrs. Kirk Garetson of Mill Valley, is made up of 34 young horse owners. The club, formed 10 years ago, meets at the Sleepy Hollow Home Owners Assn. clubhouse. Most of the riding is done individually while fulfilling 4-H projects.

The youngsters take a yearly ride along Bolinas Ridge and are met by parents who have prepared a big picnic at the ride's end in Samuel Taylor Park. All the horse groups have picnics and barbecues at the end of their rides.

The two oldest riding clubs in the county are the Tamalpais Trail Riders and the Novato Horsemen.

The Tamalpais Trail Riders, granddaddy of the groups, was 20 years old last month. Its membership, including the junior section, is about 115.

The group has the usual social rides, but its main function has been development and maintenance of trails within the water district. The group budgets $300 a year for this work.

The San Geronimo Valley Horsemen are a year old, with 150 members including the junior section. The play field is off Sir Francis Drake Highway between Woodacre and Fairfax. The field, covering eight acres, has an arena and barbecue pits are proposed.

The Southern Marin Horsemen's Assn. is the youngest of the groups, incorporated in December. Its president is Joe Brewster of Mill Valley.

THE SOUTHERN Marin Horsemen emphasize educational programs for the youngsters. "The club's mission," said Brewster, "is to teach the children how to handle horses in a congested suburban area."

Another riding group, but more specialized, is the Novato Thunderbird Bareback Drill Team. Made up of boys and girls between 12 and 18 years old, it competes with other drill teams throughout the state. The team was formed by Mrs. Arlene Johnson with the help of Mrs. Paul Hansen in 1956. Its 20 members practice on a field behind the Johnson home at 2260 Center Road.

Riding stables in the county offer a variety of services, from boarding horses to hosting rodeos.

The stable located closest to San Francisco is Finley's Diamond 4-H Stables at 420 Bayview Drive in Mill Valley. Closest to San Rafael is the Sleepy Hollow Stables at 1251 Butterfield Road, Sleepy Hollow. Others are located in Novato, Fairfax, Point Reyes and Inverness.

The Diamond 4-H Stables have no relation to the 4-H Club except that their location used to be 4-H Club property and was bought by Wesley Finley, who just kept the name. His stables board horses at $45 a month. The price includes a night stall, hay and grain. If an owner wants his animal to stay outdoors in paddock rather than in a stall it will cost him $35 a month.

SLEEPY HOLLOW Stables offers boarding, renting and instruction. It costs anyone $2 to rent a horse for the first hour at all the stables and $1.50 each additional hour at most. No children are allowed on trails without an adult. The stable has five riding rings, and two are indoors.

Select horses, including thoroughbred jumpers, are provided for students. The English instructor at Sleepy Hollow is Jack Shaw, who taught and judged in New York state for many years. Pat French, who is stable manager for owner R. D. Lang, a retired San Rafael realtor, is the western instructor along with his daughter, Linda French.

As in most of the stables, it costs about $50 a month to board a horse at Sleepy Hollow.

Two stables in Fairfax restricted to boarding are Marin Stables on Woodlands Avenue at the edge of the water district and Circle V Ranch off Sir Francis Drake in West Fairfax.

The Marin Stables were built by the owner, R. W. Elliott, 23 years ago. Boarding costs $50 a month for a box stall or $45 for straight stalls.

The Circle V Ranch spreads over 900 acres, upon which are stables and large outdoor arena used by several organizations for horse events, including the annual Kiwanis Club rodeo.

THE RANCH IS owned by Smith Brothers and operated by James McCann.

Horse stables in Novato also provide renting, boarding and instruction. At 575 Atherton Avenue, just off Highway 37 is the C-N Stables, owned and operated by Clifford A. Pearce. It costs $2 the first hour to rent a horse without a guide and $2.50 with a guide. The second guideless hour costs $1.50 and $1 an hour thereafter. A horse may also be rented by the day for $8.

C-N gives instruction in both English and Western riding, and maintains standard prices for boarding horses.

The other Novato stable is month-old Meadow Brook Stables, Inc. It is a half mile north of town on Highway 101. Rates for horse renting, boarding and instruction are the same as the Meadow Club Stables, located on Bolinas Road across from Meadow Club golf course in Fairfax.

Both these stables are owned by Rod Williams. He said their emphasis is on riding instruction. His western instructors, Norman Powell and James McKane together represent 65 years of teaching experience.

HORSE RENTALS are at standard prices. Any group of more than seven riders may have a free guide. Also boarding rates are standard with the exception of keeping show horses. They receive "full board" which includes professional grooming for $65 a month.

Another stable in Novato is due for completion soon, according to owner Tex Chilson. It is on the Pacheco ranch at 1695 Indian Valley road. Chilson plans 50 box stalls with boarding and renting at standard prices.

In West Marin are the Inverness Lodge stables on Calender way in Inverness and the McDonald Farms off Highway 1, a mile north of Point Reyes Station.

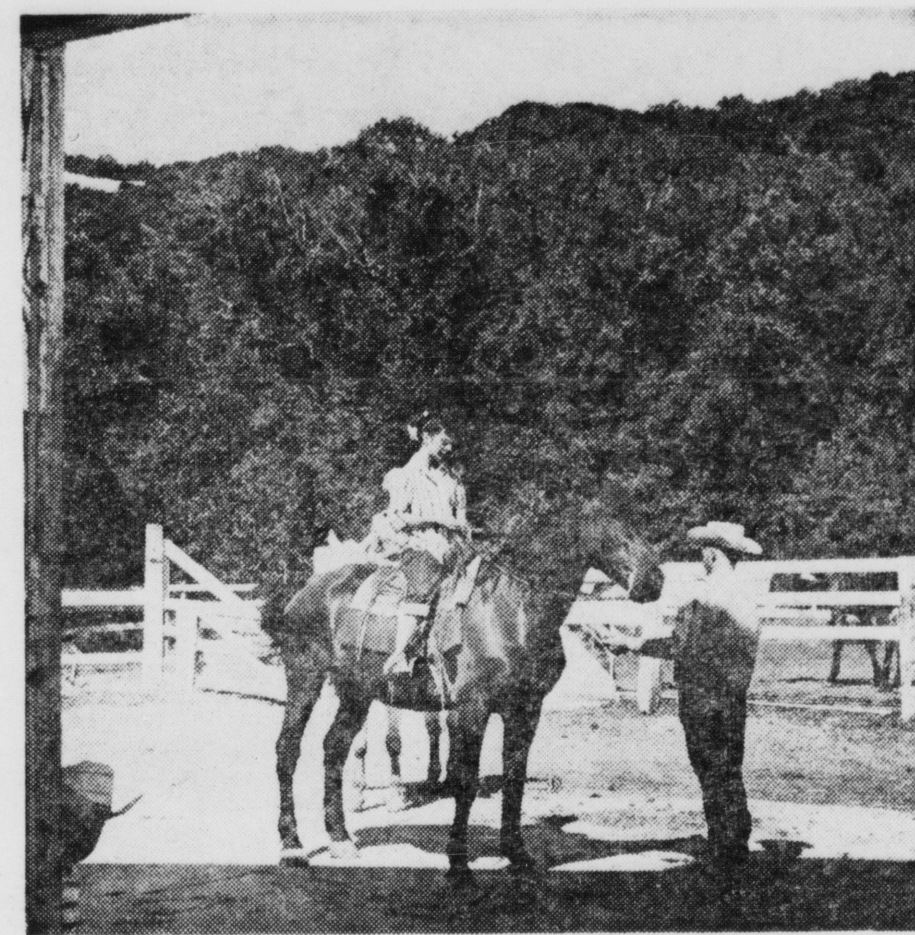

The Inverness Lodge now boards four horses. The lodge's specialty is English instruction by Valadimis L. Nevel, former member of the 1956 Australian Olympic Equestrian Team.

The lodge's stables are on 52 acres a quarter of a mile from the beach where guests may ride their own horses. Nevel said a polo field is planned.

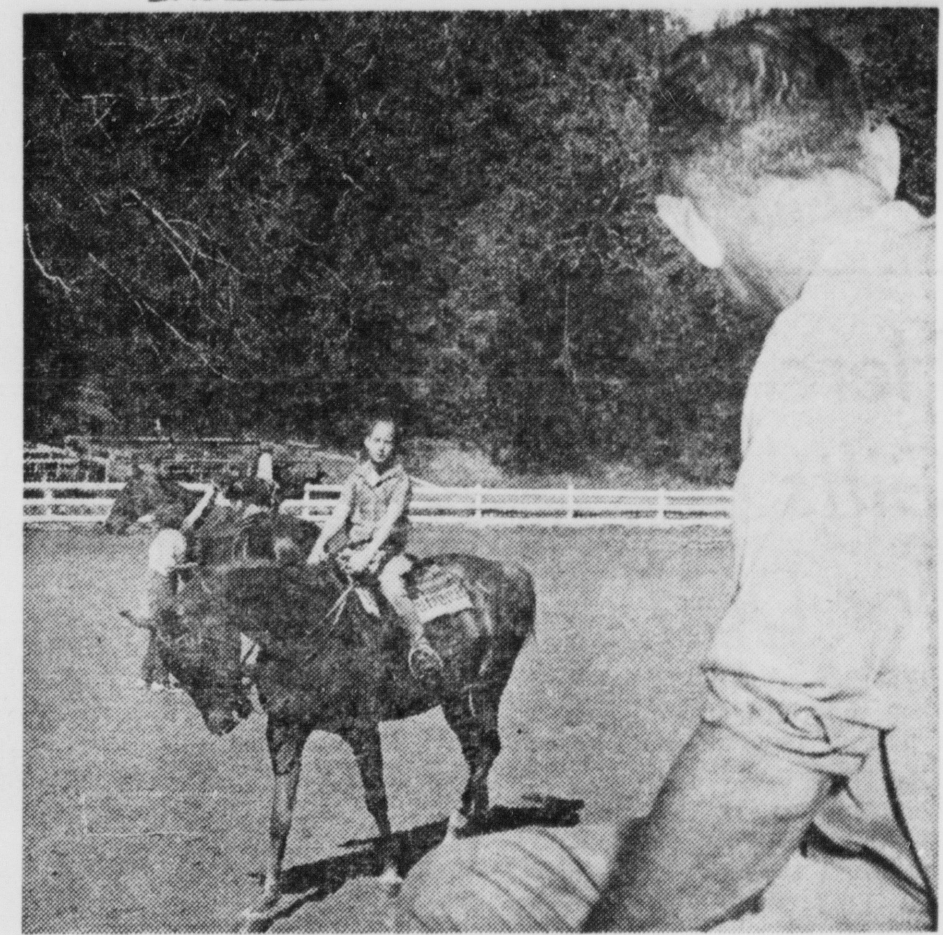

The McDonald Farms are owned by the versatile Perry McDonald, who is not only an Arabian horse breeder, but a musician and Marin County Schools librarian.

MCDONALD said his farm is almost exclusively used for breeding and selling Arabian horses. Horses may be boarded in the farm stalls for $65 a month or in the pastures for $25 a month.

Marin County is truly "horse country!"

STABLE FOREMAN Pat Richardson of the Sleepy Hollow Stables gives two young girls some advice as they prepare for a morning ride. In the foreground is Jean Vaccaro of Fairfax. Behind her and almost hidden from view is Georgietta Oliver of Ross.

Here Are Gifts For Dad

Whether or not Dad has a green thumb, a growing gift is perfect for Father's Day.

For the man "who has everything" and has given everything to his family—you'll find the answer as to what to give him at a nursery. And if you still haven't taken care of this important bit of shopping, there is still time to hurry over to the closest nursery.

If Dad enjoys barbecuing (or simply is a gourmet), start an herb garden for him. If he has one, add to it. Rosemary is one of the most popular herbs. With its fragrance, leaves like small pine needles and pale blue flowers, it has a beauty all its own. The same can be said for all varieties of marjoram.

Some of the other herbs which Dad will appreciate for use as seasoning for salads, casseroles and meats, include: parsley, thyme, garlic, and sage. These are obtainable as established plants at nurseries.

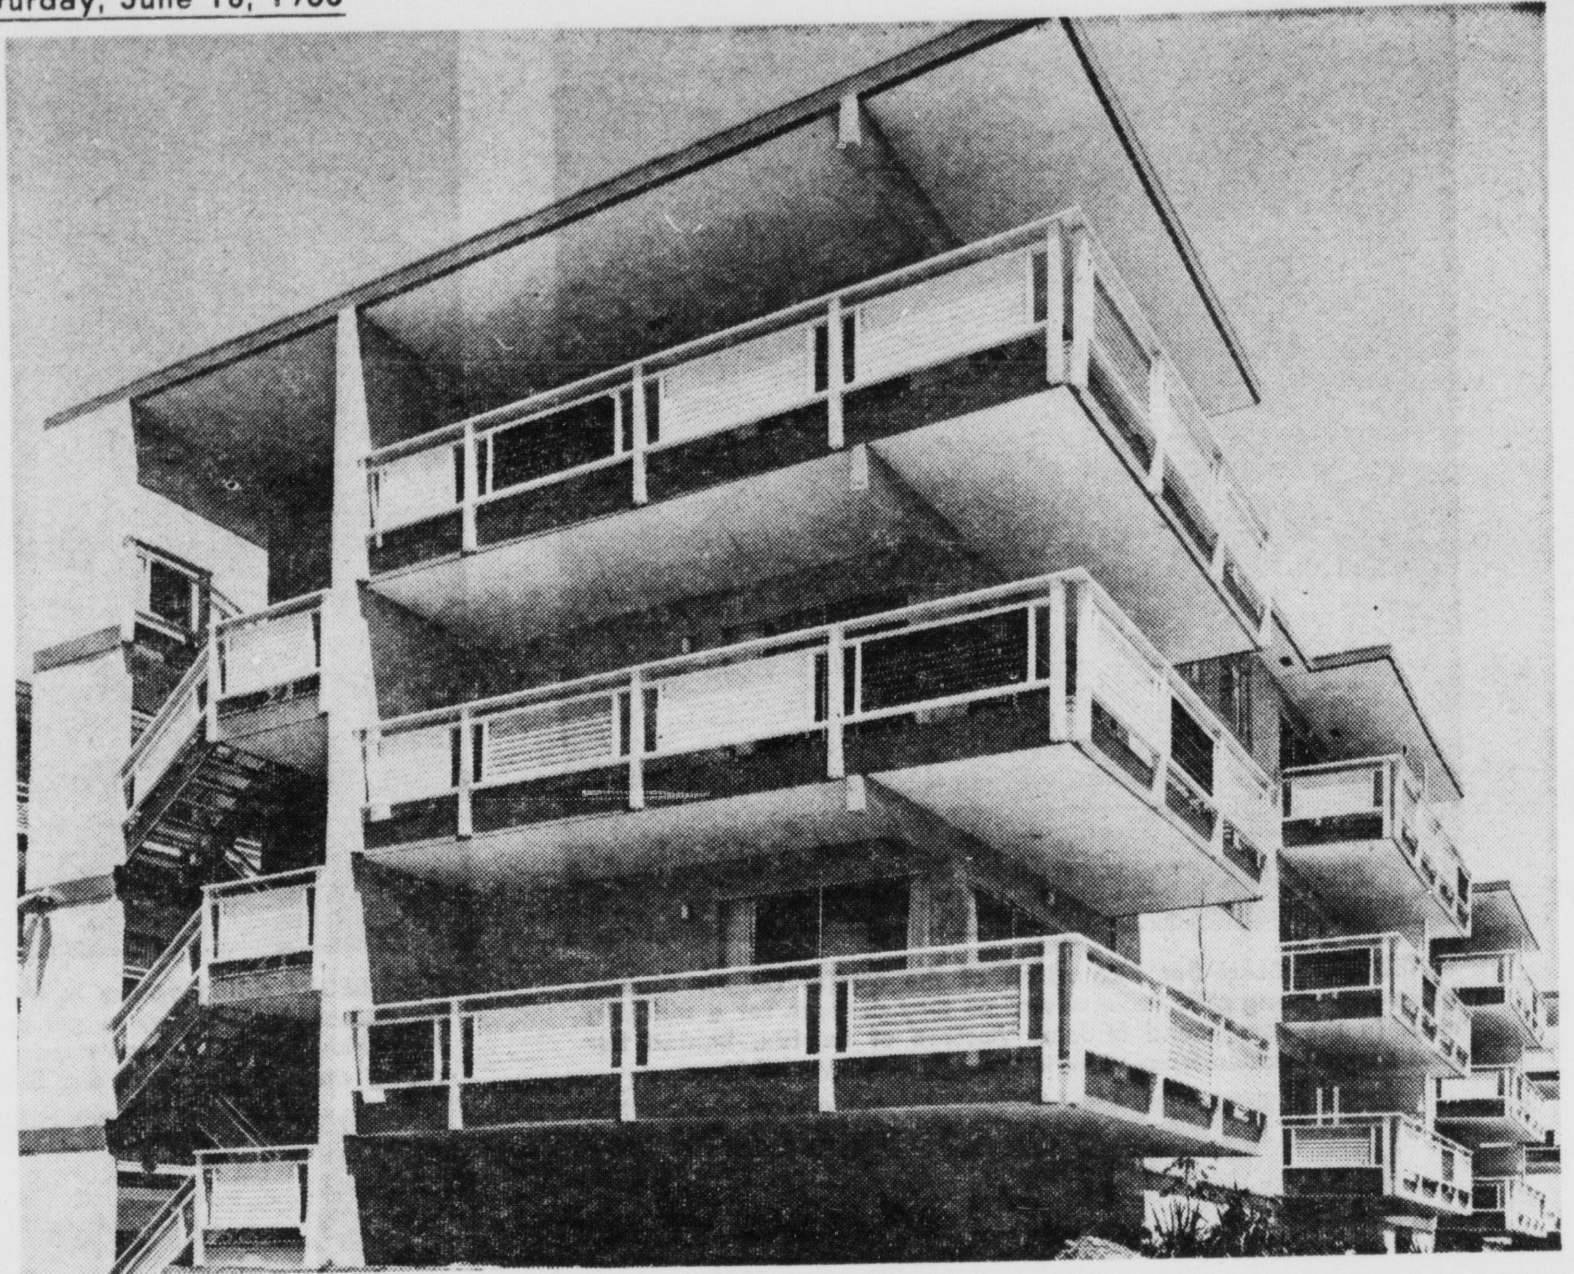

For summer drinks, mint is a rampant grower.

And speaking of drinks, one of the numerous varieties of citrus trees growing in containers at nurseries can provide him with a delectable treat for years to come.

A fine type winter orange for home plantings is Robertson Navel; while Valencia Orange is summer ripening. Both of these varieties are popular for providing sweet, plentiful juice. If Dad is partial to lemonade or limeade or likes a tang in other drinks he will especially appreciate a lemon or lime in a decorative tub for the patio. Meyer Dwarf Lemon is ideal for such a gift, because besides being exceedingly decorative (with lovely, fragrant blossoms) it has high quality fruit. Rangpur Lime is also an attractive citrus plant with pure white, perfumed blooms and top quality limes.

For Dad's den or office desk, there is an indoor plant to fit any budget. The youngster with a limited allowance will make a big show with a pot of philodendron or ivy succulent. Potted gloxinia, hydrangea or chysanthemum in bloom will be sure to brighten his room. For the lanai, anthurium will provide spectacular color with its tropical looking blooms and dark green arrow-shaped leaves. Rubber plants, diffenbachia or room-plant orchids may suit his fancy—and your pocketbook!

One of the best ways to shop for Dad is to browse through a nursery. You will find countless plants growing in containers which will serve as a constant reminder to Dad of our admiration for him.

Apartments Built For Good Living

Want to escape the responsibilities of home ownership, and yet still be surrounded by lavish landscaping and such other attributes of comfortable living as an outdoor swimming pool, and a boat dock that you can use for tying up your very own boat?

Then drive out to 260 Canal Street in San Rafael. And there you will find the Marina Landings, newly-constructed apartments just completed by Custom Builders-Parnow Brothers.

The manager on the premises will show you through a model apartment decorated by San Rafael's Dorothy Kell Interiors.

You can inspect the before-mentioned swimming, boating and sunning facilities, plus the elevators which serve the three-story apartments, the ample storage and garage space, and the many other facilities and advantages that have been incorporated into the new apartments.

The builders say Marina Landings is the result of a survey which showed a definite need and demand in this area for just such apartments.

Both the commuter and the person interested in quick access to San Rafael will find the location advantageous, they add.

They're Essential

If trees, shrubs and other plants didn't renew the oxygen in the atmosphere, the world would come to a standstill, according to the American Assn. of Nurserymen.

Grow Vines On Pillars And Posts

A vine-covered pillar or post suggests coolness on a hot summer day, even if it may not offer protection from the sun. Besides lending a homey atmosphere, many vines offer a bonus of bloom, fragrance or evergreen foliage.

According to nurserymen, there are two methods by which vines may climb vertical supports. One group literally "wraps" themselves around posts—clockwise or counter-clockwise. If young shoots are started in proper rotation, their growth will be accelerated. Once given a start (except for occasional clipping and thinning) they practically take care of themselves. Typical examples are:

honeysuckle, jasmine, wisteria bougainvillea and clematis.

The other way that Nature provides for vines to climb vertically is by means of rootlets, suction-type discs, or claws. This category is best suited to grow against masonry, stucco or stone work. To name a few of the many excellent illustrations: Boston Ivy, Fig Ivy, Catclaw Trumpet, and Mexican Trumpet Vine.

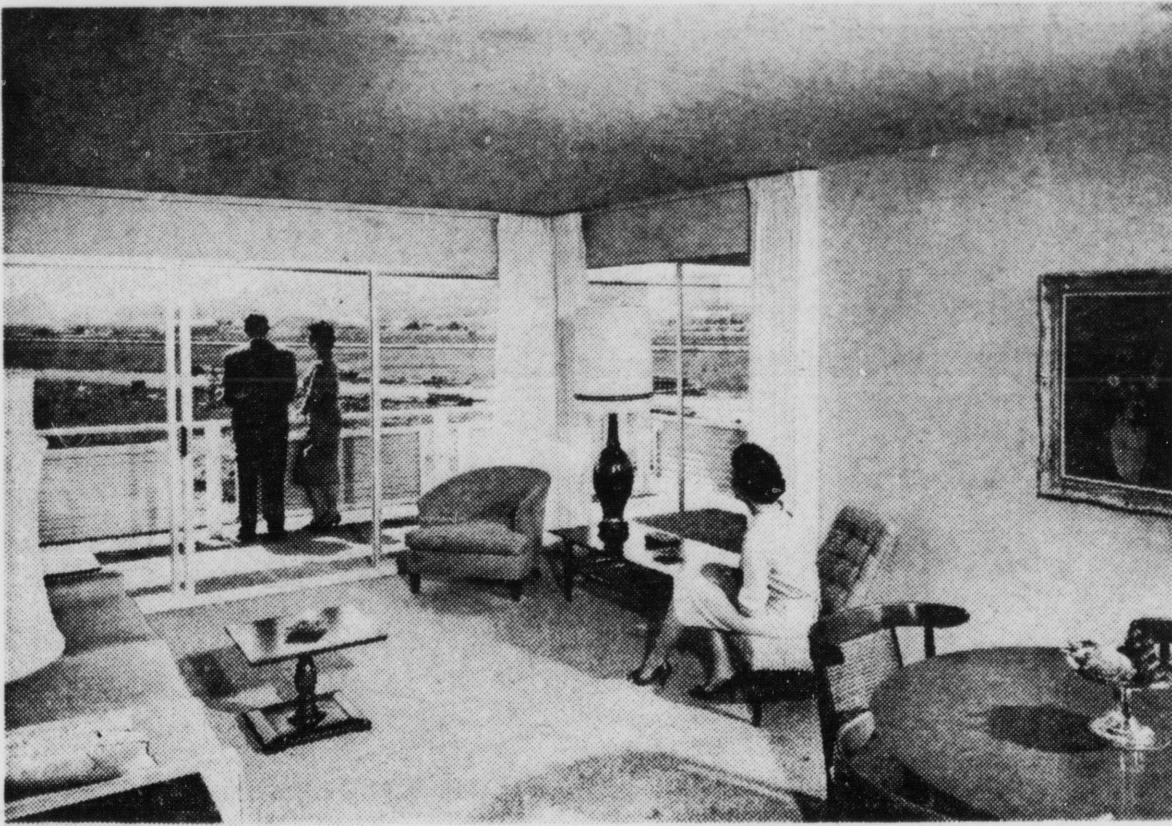

Bougainvilleas are among the most flamboyant of all flowering vines. Brilliant bracts of red, rose-purple, crimson and bright rose almost constantly in bloom (reaching a peak mid-summer) make bougainvillea eye-catchers wherever they are grown. They like rich soil and full sun, and are especially adaptable to coastal regions. While Purple Bougainvillea is the hardiest, nurseries offer several variations.

Honeysuckle is an all-time favorite for California porches. The creamy-yellow flowers are prolific on evergreen Hall's Japanese Honeysuckle. It will do well in almost any soil—in sun or shade. Biggest of honeysuckles with showy yellow-white flowers that change to bright orange is Burmese Honeysuckle.

"Pillar to post" ceases to be a mundane description when they're dressed in vines!

PROSPECTIVE RENTERS are sure to be attracted by the expansive view from the large balconies which open out from the large living rooms of the Marina Landings apartments. The Canal Street apartments are located just three blocks off Francisco East in San Rafael.

Most such open air shows are subject to several faults. They usually offer too much to see and really comprehend. They are often staged in dusty surroundings. And under a hot summer sun or in a strong wind that soon tires the visitors and drains them of the ability to enjoy that which they are seeing.

But the picturesque El Paseo offered an ideal setting for such a show. The outdoor surroundings were there. But all was spotlessly clean. There was plenty of cool shade. And the exhibited pieces were held to a reasonable number so that they could be attractively displayed and not lined up on the walls like so many advertising posters.

Art in action demonstrations of portraits, pottery, mosaic and leather crafts proved informative as well as entertaining.

Music, light refreshments, and floral decorations added to the occasion as did pretty young hostesses attractively gowned.

And for those who had not had their fill of sightseeing after viewing the art and antique displays, several of the colorful El Paseo shops were open for their inspection.

It was a perfect setting for such an event. And we hope and believe that others present enjoyed it as much as we did.

DRIVEWAY

A Use For Pieces Of Old Walk

An attractive driveway can be made using discarded pieces from a sidewalk which has been torn up and replaced.

Precast concrete slabs can be similarly used, either in their regular shape or decoratively broken and laid in random fashion with grass divider strips between.

Such a driveway can easily double as a patio or play area, since the grass strips tie it in with garden plantings and the rest of the lawn.

Scattered concrete slabs in a driveway will provide good drainage and protection against muddy or dusty feet during extremes in weather, thus improving the appearance of entrance halls inside the house. They are durable, long-lasting, easy to keep clean and inexpensive to maintain.

Precast slabs can be purchased from concrete products manufacturers, and are available in various colors. The manufacturer's reject pile may be the source for cracked, chipped or imperfect slabs which can be purchased at a savings.

Before the slabs are put in place, the area should be excavated to allow for a four-inch layer of sand beneath. A slight slope should be given the surface for proper drainage.

After the concrete is in place, the spaces between can then be sodded.

Take Steps Now To Avoid That After-June Letdown In Garden

In June, gardeners reap the rewards of their efforts.

All of the plants seem to be saying "thanks" for your care: Feeding, watering, cultivating, pruning, mulching and spraying. A little effort has paid large dividends.

The California Assn. of Nurserymen suggests that you plan ahead so that after the glorious June blooms have gone, the garden won't have a summer letdown.

One way to prevent this is to make space for plants that will give color into fall. Toward the end of this month, those spring bulbs can come out—provided their foliage has turned brownish-yellow. This will allow room to plant such sun-loving summer bloomers as marigolds, snapdragons, dahlias, petunias and zinnias. These and many more bedding plants are available in flats at nurseries.

And don't neglect the edges of the garden. The many hues of alyssum, creeping zinnia and dwarf marigolds make colorful borders which will thrive in full sun.

Another simple way to quickly inject summer color is to make a choice from the wide assortment of perennials abloom in containers at your nursery. (This also takes the guesswork out of buying!)

For gay splashes of yellow and white—don't eat the daisies, plant them! Marguerites established in gallon cans will flourish through the hot months. And they come in a luscious new shade of pink. Two other perennials that are equally easy to grow in the sun are Pelargoniums and Geraniums. Their many varieties come in a dazzling array of colors.

Probably the most exotic of summer flowers are tuberous begonias. The vigorous, healthy plants growing in containers at nurseries will offer spectacular blooms come summer. Tuberous begonias have four simple basic requirements: Partial shade, rich loose soil, protection from wind, and moisture in the air and soil. This makes the coastal areas particularly adaptable. In window boxes, pots, planters or bedded in the garden, tuberous begonias put on a summer flower show that is hard to beat.

June offers a challenge for gardeners—to see if they can equal the splendor of the garden's overall effect in later months.

Privet Ideal For Hedges; Here Are Reasons Why

Privet is ideal for hedges of medium height because of its beautiful dark green, dense growing foliage, and, in many species, its creamy-white flowers.

Glossy Privet has abundant, broad, pointed leaves from four to six inches long. Although it will grow to 30 feet as a small tree, it is most effective when trimmed to provide a five to six foot "living fence."

The leaves and flowers of Japanese or Waxleaf Privet are thicker, smaller and less pointed than the Glossy types. They're lower growing, too.

One of the waxiest-leaved forms is Texas Privet. (Authorities are not positive; but believe that Texas is a form of Japanese Privet). As a specimen Texas Privet grows no higher than six to nine feet. The broadleaved varieties lend themselves to informal plantings.

California Privet provides evergreen or semi-deciduous types with four-inch flower clusters. Its dense oval leaves come in dark green and also variegated forms: marbled with pale yellow, or yellow-edged. Since it isn't fussy as to heat and wind, California Privet makes an economical windbreak—particularly adaptable at the seashore.

Deciduous Common Privet and English Privet are often times clipped to unusual shapes in formal gardens.

Sim Wenner, A Writer Who Is Fascinated By Her Craft

By BETH ASHLEY

"Back Away From the Stove," now on sale at Marin bookstores, is Sim Wenner's first book, but she has been writing since she was 12.

Sim, a Santa Venetia resident and mother of three, puts it this way: "I grew up in an age when we couldn't say 'I hate you' to our mothers. So I wrote in secret. I poured out enough material on paper to keep a psychiatrist busy for a decade."

Before her marriage, she wrote magazine articles in a how-to vein: How To Do This, How To Do That, and one title of which she is particularly proud: "How To Raise Your Children and Lower Their Grandmother."

After marriage she began working on a novel, but when the call came to give up housewifery for business, she put writing aside without regret. "Writing was painful and difficult for me. Adding a column of figures was much easier."

Twelve years later she returned to her typewriter, strengthened with the know-how of business communication, and feels today that, though a beginner, she is at last a writer.

THE YEARS between were busy and diverse. A native of New York, she attended Hunter College and studied sociology. She married Ed Wenner, her partner in the Baby Formulas business about which her first book is written. When he went into the service, she did, too: as a supply officer in the Navy stationed in New Orleans. The baby formula business followed the war, and so did the children, Jan, now 14, Kate, 12, and Martha, 10.

Her return to writing came about like a young author's dream. On the strength of friends' recommendations, the New York publishing firm of Doubleday wrote to ask her if she had any books in mind to write. "It was all very frightening," says Sim. "I took two months to answer. I submitted four ideas—all of them completely different in mood and subject—and got their letter back, 'Let's go!'"

"Back Away From the Stove" was her first. Her second is already completed. ("It's more gutsy. It's about life in the suburbs.")

How does she like writing? ("I'm just delighted. It's a way of life, not an occupation. Once you get accustomed to the business of perceiving, you do it all the time. Everything is a button for the buttonbox.")

Her writing hours follow the school day. She works hard at the typewriter all day until the children return, then puts her manuscript completely aside — "If the earth is moving under the sleeping bag, to heck with it."

In writing "Stove," she found for the first time that authorship could be fun. "I wrote for myself. I threw everything in — filthy humor, crummy jokes, dashes for the words I couldn't think of. It was fun."

"I STOPPED thinking about the person reading over my shoulder. I wrote for myself and edited for my worst enemy — the person who would pick up my stuff and scoff."

Editing is one of her primary pleasures. "Writers can putter endlessly over their work. Not so the artist, whose colors will get muddy if he lingers too long over his creation."

Sim grinned as she talked. "Some of this sounds so pontifical. I'm a new writer, just learning my craft. But I do find it fascinating."

A source of satisfaction to her now is the reaction of her children to her new career. She describes in her book some of the guilt feelings that dog a working mother, and is happy to say that her writing has brought the children a certain amount of pride. "It justifies to them all the craziness about me."

What's on the docket for Sim's future? She smiles in easy contentment. "Books — and more books."

SANTA VENETIA'S Sim Wenner enjoys one of the big thrills of a writer whose first book has just been published. She autographs a copy of her book, "Back Away from the Stove" which has just gone on sale in the bookstores.

Marinite Proves Master Of Difficult Art Of Humor

BACK AWAY FROM THE STOVE, by Sim Wenner, Doubleday and Co., 256 pages, $3.95. Reviewed by Beth Ashley.

Humor is the hardest thing of all to write.

My authority for this statement is Sim Wenner, to whom humor is apparently as natural as her freckles, easy smile and breezy personality.

She has proved her mastery of the art this week with publication of her first book, "Back Away from the Stove." The book, based on her 12-year experience as general manager of Baby Formulas, Inc., makes big fun out of the tribulations of small business.

It's a refreshing change of diet from the self-conscious confessionals and sex-laden blasphemies most young authors feel compelled to produce.

Maybe life in a baby formula factory doesn't sound to you like food for fun, but you haven't yet met the cast of originals who work there: e.g. Roberto the deliveryman, who rehearses operatic arias on his milk runs; Mr. Mendenhall, the landlord, whose helpfulness keeps the firm on the brink of disaster; Cindy the six-foot office girl who took several years out of a dubious profession to help put Baby Formulas on a paying basis.

And then there's Sim, whose eye for irony and taste for the absurd make life among the bill collectors sound zestful and gay. Of course she DOES point out in the preface that "in this book . . . vast liberties have been taken with the Truth."

The fact is, however, that Baby Formulas, Inc., a San Francisco firm, now supplies bottled formulas for 100,000 babies born in northern California hospitals each year. The business, Sim's brainchild, is now a healthy adult, but it had its precarious days of incubation. There were the years among the meat hooks of the converted butcher shop that was Formulas' first home. There were the problems of hiring and firing, of luring customers and losing them, of producing endless gallons of milk-and-sugar-and-water while the sources of capital were slowly drying up.

While all this was going on, the general manager sought to survive pre-natal kicking and post-natal breast-feeding "in the enemy camp" to produce three children of her own.

Not until the business was on a sound footing did Sim go back to her stove. From there, though the book does not tell it, the Businesswoman at last had time to sit down and write the story of Baby Formulas, which is every bit the pick-me-up of an ice-cold bottle of her own product—with a kick in it.

Predictions are flowing freely that the book will go into a second and third printing (Sim already knows of 10 sales). With her writing formula of biting wit and easy chuckles, it's hard to see how she could miss.

CARTOONIST Bob Gumpertz put his talents to work in capturing on paper the unusual star of the Sausalito Little Theater's upcoming musical melodrama, "In the Shadow of the Rockies." It's a Wurlitzer Theater Orchestra, brought to Sausalito for the production which opens Friday.

The Star Of The Show Arrived Late—And In Three Sections

Now that the star of the show has arrived, the cast of the original musical melodrama, "In the Shadow of the Rockies," is rehearsing at fever pitch for next Friday's grand opening at the Sausalito Little Theater.

Rehearsals for the production, under the direction of John Brebner, began last April. But in true tradition of the theater, the Star arrived late. She was delivered to the theater in three sections on June 10 and was greeted warmly by musical director Leonard Jared and choreographer Lucy Watson.

For what is a musical without its star performer?

She is affectionately known as "It," "Gobbledegook," or "The Thing." More formally, she is known as the Wurlitzer Theater Orchestra, circa 1915. This will be her first public performance since her original theater — the Strand in Oakland — was dismantled.

Owned now by Richard Reutlinger of San Francisco, a member of the melodrama company, she has recently been completely overhauled and rejuvenated. This was no easy task, considering the complications involved: Regular piano section with 11 foot pedals, six organ stops and four additional assorted buttons and levers. All these lead to a wide variety of pipes, tubes and springs which in turn operate 80 organ pipes divided into flutes, violins and bass tones; bass drum, snare drums, tom tom, triangle, castanets, and bird whistle; not to mention the tambourine, cymbals and Chinese gong.

WHEN ASKED about the Wurlitzer's future, after the summer long workout at the Sausalito Little Theater, Reutlinger said he hopes to be able to place her in some compable restaurant in the Bay Area.

Meanwhile, she's ready to go and can be heard in Sausalito for the first time on Friday and every Friday and Saturday after that until Labor Day. Curtain time is 8:30 at 745½ Bridgeport, Sausalito.

BOOK REVIEWS

For Young And Old Fans Of Railroading

RAILROADS IN THE DAYS OF STEAM by Albert L. McCready, American Heritage Publishing Co., 156 pages, $3.50. Reviewed by Richard Steinheimer.

If there were ever any good reasons for going back to childhood, this nifty volume must be one of them.

"Railroads in the Days of Steam" is the third book in the American Heritage Junior Library series. It is a color illustrated narrative of the facts, tales and scenes of railroading in the United States from 1829 to the end of the steam in our generation.

For approximately two and one-third cents a page the reader is treated to 64 magnificent full-color reproductions of railroad posters, Currier and Ives prints and original drawings mostly taken from the before-the-turn-of-the-century era.

Author McCready, in consultation with Lawrence W. Sagle, curator of the Baltimore and Ohio Transportation Museum, splices these and other illustrations with a dozen chapters of narrative on phases of the "Golden Era" of American railroading.

Kiddies and adult readers are led through the era of amateur railroad building to the coming of age of railroading in the Civil War; then through the pulsing wars of the financiers and the taming of the rail giants by the Grange, organized labor and public regulatory bodies.

The purist railroad lover may rightly quarrel with the short shrift given to railroading in this century or the few minor lapses where "Raton Pass, Texas" pops up for Raton, N. M. or "steam dome" for sand dome.

Any such flaws are insignificant in the face of the general high quality of the production.

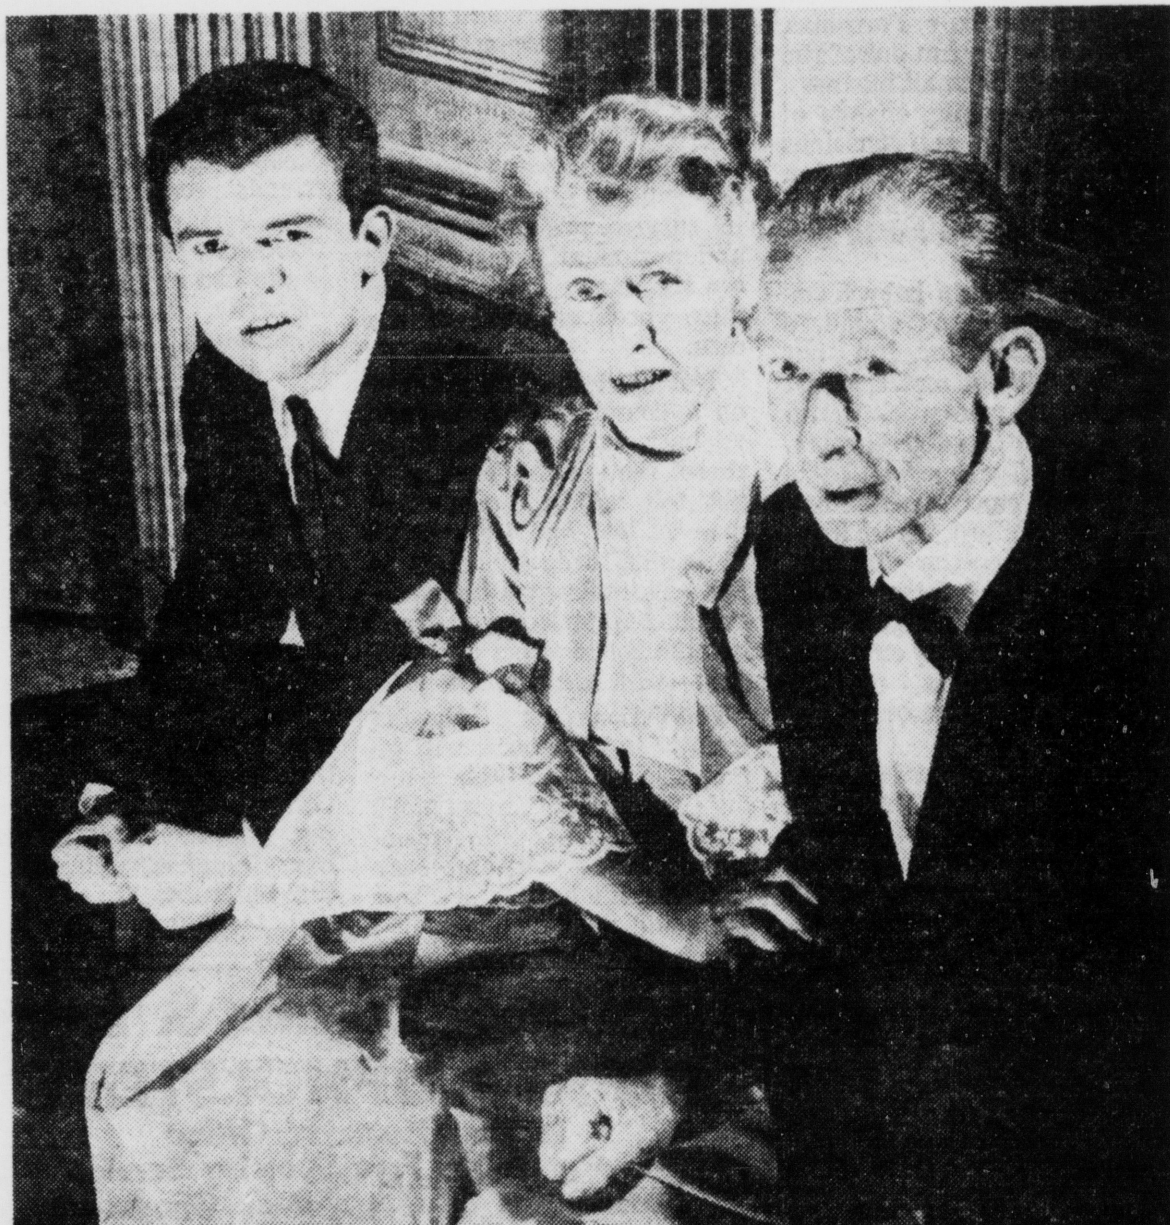

Recommendation: Informative for kiddies and fun for adults.

THE CALIFORNIA OUTLAW, compiled by Robert Greenwood, Talisman Press, 296 pages, $5.95. Reviewed by R. S. Johnson.

In the last few years several publishers have copied and republished accounts of west- ernlore, history, fact and fiction from old manuscripts that are valuable collector's items.

The greater portion of this book is devoted to the account of one of California's most daring bandits, Tiburcio Vasquez, as written by George Beers in 1875. Beers, a San Francisco Chronicle reporter, was a member of the posse that captured Vasquez. Beers shot and wounded the bandit as he attempted to escape.

This is a more factual account than most of the many stories of California bandits because of Beers' writings and Greenwood's research of contemporary news accounts, state and county files, and unpublished correspondence. Thirteen half-tone illustrations add to the desirability of this book for would-be collectors that can now form a library of this and other republished material without the extensive outlay of time and money it would take to obtain original copies.

Barnett, Babs Dreyfus and Lee MacArthur. The play ends a successful three-weekend run tonight at 8:30 at the Tiburon Playhouse in Tiburon. (Photo by Ken Reichard)

THE COMBINATION of a fine tenor voice and good looks has made Brian Sullivan a great opera and concert favorite. He'll be in Marin tomorrow to open the 1960 concert series of the Marin Music Chest at Forest Meadows.

Music Chest Series Opens With Handsome Irish Tenor

"He looks like a football hero, and sings like a Martinelli," wrote one music critic not long ago. And in so writing, he was able to wrap up in one sentence the appeal that makes the brawny and handsome Brian Sullivan, Metropolitan Opera tenor who opens the Marin Music Chest Summer Concert Season tomorrow afternoon, a natural for operetta and musical comedy as well as grand opera.

Sullivan was born in Los Angeles and, during his last years in high school, he began to think of serious voice study. A student production of "Pirates of Penzance" convinced him that he wanted to sing as a career.

He made his first professional appearance at 21 as "Count Almaviva" in Rossini's "Barber of Seville." During the war, he served for two years with the infantry, and, following his discharge, went to Broadway to sing the leading tenor role in a revival of "Showboat."

The dramatic step in his young career came when he was selected to appear in the musical adaptation of Elmer Rice's "Street Scene" to a Kurt Weill score. The producers desperately needed a young and virile tenor who could both act and sing as well as meet the requirements of a Broadway leading man in looks.

In 1947 he was asked to audition at the "Met," and, while on stage auditioning, he was signed and started rehearsals the same day—something that very seldom happens at operatic auditions. February of 1948 saw a brilliant debut for Sullivan in the title role of Britten's modern work "Peter Grimes." His immediate success led to a series of additional roles in the Italian, French and German operas.

Sullivan's yearly concert tours are accorded receptions attesting to his popularity with critics and audiences alike.

He is married, and, between engagements, tries to spend as much time as possible with his wife and three children (two girls and a boy) in their spacious home in Manhasset, Long Island, where he devotes much of his time to gardening and carpentry, at which he is quite proficient.

This affable, laughing Irishman, "with a voice like Martinelli," will be heard tomorrow afternoon in a program that includes two operatic arias, and songs by Donaudy, Massenet, Lalo, Grever, Sandoval, Grieg, Quilter and Malotte. Ralph Linsley will be at the piano.

The concert will start at 3 p.m. in Forest Meadows in San Rafael. Gates will open at 1:30 p.m. There will be no reserved seats.

Good Novel On Old Topic

SHOULD THE WIND BE FAIR by Garland Roark, Doubleday and Company Inc., $4.95, 529 pages. Reviewed by Bill Hendricks.

Another novel about blockade-running during the Civil War, alas, but nonetheless a good one and told by a pro, Garland Roark, whose "Wake of the Red Witch" may be remembered by many as a good thing.

Roark knows and lives his backgrounds and moves central character Hardin Stone from the ease of Baltimore to Bermuda, Haiti and the Bahamas and back again to the south coast and running the war-termed contraband to the Confederates in a rapid and interesting style.

THE RITUALS OF WINE

Silly Or Otherwise, Following Rules Lends An Air Of Pomp

A lot of nonsense has grown up about the ritual of serving wine. But nonsense or not, it's fun.

So writes Leon D. Adams of Sausalito in the "Commonsense Book of Wine," based on a lifetime of wine lore and published by David McKay Co. Inc.

A co-founder of the Wine Institute a quarter-century ago and its secretary until his retirement in 1954, Adams recently has prepared a new book, scheduled for summer publication, dealing with all types of beverages and to be entitled "The Commonsense Book of Drinking."

Adams observes that: "What we Americans meekly accept as compulsory rules for our service of wine would be amusing if it were not that the very existence of such rules discourages many people from introducing this civilized beverage into their homes.

"This is all the more distressing when it is realized that some of the wine rules slavishly obeyed in the United States are as garbled in translation from their commonsense Old World origins as the spelling of French dishes' names on the average American menu.

"On the other hand, there is no denying that ceremony adds something to the pleasure of having wine. . . . Moreover, many of us enjoy pomp and ritual—which by the way undoubtedly helps to account for the popularity of many fraternal organizations. Formal wine service can be fun."

Adams lists a dozen rules of ostentatious wine service and sets forth that "silly, or otherwise, they are: (1) correct stemware, (2) correct table setting, (3) no smoking, (4) decanting, (5) correct wine temperature, (6) napkin around bottle, (7) cutting the capsule, (8) drawing the cork, (9) smelling same, (10) "pouring the cork," (11) order of service to guests, and (12) correct wine with each course."

On stemware, Adams advises "buy some of the sensible wine glasses a few manufacturers at last are beginning to place on the market . . . plain, clear, tulip-shaped, measuring seven or eight ounces to the brim, and fill them half-full. Throw away your thimble-sized wine glasses."

On table settings, which began with the formal banquets of another day, don't use more than three glasses and pour each wine successively into the glass nearest the table edge. Take off the glass when the wine is finished.

The 'no smoking' rule, in his opinion, is for gourmets only. Decanting is only necessary if you are serving an extremely old red wine, to get rid of sediment.

As for temperature, Champagne, white wines and Rose's are preferred cold and red wines slightly cool.

Adams calls the napkin-around-the-bottle act "silliest of all wine customs," and doesn't recommend it.

In cutting the capsule—the foil or plastic protecting the cork or cap—he says the connoisseur carefully cuts it just below the bottle's lip, rather than rip all of it off. This is only so the bottle won't seem naked.

The cork should be drawn at the table because it whets guests' tastes. But smelling the cork is disagreeable and unnecessary. "Pouring the cork," with the host pouring an ounce or two into his own glass first, prevents guests from getting any cork fragments and allows the host to taste the wine and make certain it has not spoiled.

The rules say service should be counterclockwise with ladies served first, then reversed with the gentlemen served, Adams notes. He adds he has seen it done only once however, and the best rule is to serve wine in the most convenient order.

On the correct wine with each course, Adams says it would be far better if the rules makers would emphasize only that dry wines taste best when served before sweet wines, and whites before reds.

Other Adams tips:

"Wine is cheaper by the case . . . most stores will give you 10 per cent off the per-bottle price. Ask them if it isn't so, because they seldom advertise it.

"Most American wines are bottled in either fifths or quarts. But European table wines frequently come in somewhat smaller bottles. So note the net contents before you buy, to see whether you are getting your money's worth . . .

"The best bargains in wine drinking are the half-gallon and gallon jugs.

"Here is an additional economy tip: To get the by-the-gallon price and still protect your table wine from spoiling, transfer the contents of a gallon jug into ten screwcapped half-bottles, carefully washing and drying them first; and keep them in the refrigerator until time for use."

To walk with you on such a night
With that glorious moon shedding beams of light,
My darling, walking with you beneath the full of the moon,
Makes me wish eternity would be June.
Loving moon! Who gives the flowers
diamond petals and leaves,
That makes the lake shimmer in the dying breeze,
Let your loving face stay

CHECKING the CHANNELS

With HAL CASE

STERLING HAYDEN has made no secret of the fact that he has derived something less than personal satisfaction from his career as a movie actor.

And certainly those of us who have viewed his films, including a number of old ones now bouncing around in the late hour television time slots, can understand the reasons for his discontent.

The hard cold fact is that Hollywood consistently assigned Hayden to far from choice roles. He was afforded little real opportunity to act. And thus he came to be considered a member of that large corps of moviedom leading men with virile good looks—and very little dramatic talent.

It must then have been a refreshing change for Hayden when he was finally afforded a chance to appear in a strong dramatic role. The opportunity came, not in the movies, but, somewhat surprisingly, in television.

And those of you who watched the DuPont Show of the Month production of "Ethan Frome" on KPIX-TV (Channel 5) last Feb. 18 will remember that Hayden met the challenge in such a manner as to establish beyond dispute that, when given a chance, he can be far more than just a handsome muscle man.

"Ethan Frome" was one of the standout productions of the just completed television season.

Hayden was in fast company. His leading lady was the incomparable Julie Harris. And, as always, she was superb as Mattie.

A less well-known but highly-skilled actress, Clarice Blackburn, also scored strongly as Zenobia Frome, the nagging wife.

But Hayden as Ethan was in no way overshadowed by those two strong performances. He enacted the title role with such sensitivity and depth that it was difficult to believe that this was the same actor as the movie hero.

It became evident that Hollywood had underestimated his abilities. And it became clear why his movie career had brought disillusionment and discouragement to Hayden instead of satisfaction.

On Monday night's Emmy Awards show, "Ethan Frome" will be up for "outstanding dramatic show" honors. And Miss Harris has been nominated for outstanding actress, single performance.

Hayden is not among the nominees for outstanding actor, single performance. But that, we think, is not because his acting in "Ethan Frome" was anything less than top quality. It is due, instead, to the exceptionally high caliber of competition. The three nominees for male acting honors, single performance, are Lee J. Cobb in "Project Immortality," Alec Guinness in "The Wicked Scheme of Jebal Deeks," and Laurence Olivier in "The Moon and Sixpence."

All, of course, are excellent choices. But if there was difference in the quality of their performances and that of Hayden, it was only a shade. And in a lesser season, with fewer outstanding specials, Hayden would have been a leadpipe cinch for a nomination.

At that, he will be due his full share of credit if "Ethan Frome" does walk off with top dramatic show honors.

For this honor, too, the competition is torrid. Other nominees, which include both series and single productions, include the very outstanding "Turn of the Screw" and "Moon and Sixpence" shows, the much honored Playhouse 90 series, and "The Untouchables," a crime series that is a standout in its own field but would hardly seem to rate with the other dramatic award nominees.

At best, "Ethan Frome" must be rated a long-shot. But in a season in which television came up with a larger than usual number of fine dramatic offerings, the nomination in itself is quite an honor for the people associated with "Ethan Frome" including Marinette Hayden.

IN THE PAST both the "Emmy" and the "Oscar" award shows have fallen short of the mark as entertainment fare.

Monday night, however, could mark a breakthrough.

A "new look" is planned for the television award presentations this year. Gone, NBC says, will be the familiar dais, the banquet look, the "presenters," and the mysterious envelopes.

Stressed will be simplicity.

In place of lavish settings will be a cyclorama, a curtain reaching from floor to ceiling. Nominees and celebrity guests will be seated on bleachers. And instead of stars appearing briefly and meaninglessly as "presenters," they will be cast as active participants in the show.

Such refreshing comedians as the team of Mike Nichols and Elaine May, and the new sensation, Bob Newhart, have been included among the entertainers.

Also part of the movement toward de-emphasis of the dramatic and the theatrical is the selection of Fred Astaire and Arthur Godfrey as the two masters of ceremonies. Both are exponents of the easy-going informal approach to such duties.

The number of awards has been slashed drastically. This has resulted in some confusion, with single productions competing against season-long series for some honors. But on the whole, it should be a move for the better.

And as for the envelope and the fumbling, nervous fingers of the "presenter," that has been replaced by what the producers describe as "a novel device that will remain a secret until the first winner is announced."

It sounds like this year's show, to be seen here on KRON-TV (Channel 4) at 10 p.m., might be well worth the watching.

HERE'S HOW ONE network, the National Broadcasting Co., plans to handle its television and radio coverage of the national political conventions. Artist Alexander Leydenfrost is responsible for this conception of NBC Convention Central, nerve center for the coverage, as it will look in the Los Angeles Sports Arena during the Democratic conclave. NBC Convention Central, in foreground, is composed of four areas: Preset control room at top, on-the-air control room at right, administrative control room at center, and executive area, lower left. At left of Convention Central is the transmission and video control room. Inset photo at upper left is of David Brinkley and Chet Huntley, "anchor men" for the network's convention coverage. They will work from a booth overlooking the convention floor.

Winners In Census Contest Announced

An attractive San Rafael career woman, who works in the county assessor's office, can go on a buying spree today because she guessed the population of Marin County within eight of the census figure.

Mrs. H. J. Anderson of 115 Golden Hinde Boulevard won $100 in merchandise orders as first prize in the Independent-Journal's census contest because she pegged the county's population as of April 30 at 145,553. The figure returned by the census bureau was 145,545.

Mrs. Anderson has lived here since July, 1958, when she and her husband, a civilian employee of the Army Transportation Department at Fort Mason, moved from San Francisco.

"How did I hit so close? Well, it was just a good guess," said the lucky Mrs. Anderson today. The contest, with prizes for nearest correct estimates of population of the county and its cities and of the Independent-Journal's paid circulation on April 30, produced one double winner.

Mrs. Ann L. Gumperz of 423 East Blithedale Avenue, Mill Valley, guessed both the I-J circulation and the Mill Valley population closer than did anyone else.

Mrs. Gumperz, wife of a Standard Oil Co. analyst who works in San Francisco, pegged the I-J's circulation at 28,375. The correct figure was 28,384.

Mrs. Gumperz won a $25 merchandise order. She barely missed out R. Gioana of San Anselmo, who estimated the circulation at 28,374.

Mrs. Gumperz was within nine of the correct circulation figure and within 18 of Mill Valley's population. She guessed her home town at 10,360 people. The census gave it 10,342. She received another $25 for the Mill Valley estimate.

Other winners in estimating city populations, who receive $25 merchandise orders, are:

Corte Madera — Mrs. David L. McIntosh, 49 Birch Avenue.

Fairfax — Mrs. Michel Lipman, 485 Seenic Drive.

Larkspur — Milton W. Fleischmann, 421 Elm Avenue.

Novato — Mrs. Joseph M. Keating, 1378 Joyce Street.

Ross — Mrs. Elaine Guthrie, Glenwood Avenue.

San Anselmo — Richard Keating, 130 Ross Avenue.

San Rafael — Mrs. W. L. Morgan, 15 Madeleine Lane.

Sausalito — Charleine Strittmatter, 28 Filbert Street.

Mrs. McIntosh missed the population of her home town of Corte Madera by only five, estimating it at 5,950 where the census found 5,945.

Mrs. McIntosh is the wife of a Corte Madera police sergeant.

Mrs. Lipman missed the population of Fairfax by 64, but her guess was the closest of scores who tried to peg the Fairfax figure in the contest.

She guessed 5,608, underestimating the 5,672 returned by the census. Other guesses range. See WINNERS, Page 6

WEISSICH STILL FUMING

Visiting Judge Dismisses Narcotics Suspects Case

Two women narcotics suspects who profited yesterday by an official brawl to slip out of Marin County custody were today in the hands of state agents and center of further investigation in San Francisco.

"I hope authorities there won't run into the same obstacles we did here," stormed Dist. Atty. William O. Weissich after Deputy Dist. Atty. Harold F. Wolters had asked and obtained dismissal of a case before visiting Judge Wallace W. Cox of Solano County in Marin Municipal Court.

Wolters said Mrs. Elsie L. Gallo, 40, and Mrs. Terrell Lynn Wells, 25, arrested in Mill Valley last Sunday on charges of obtaining narcotics by fraud, should be freed "in the interest of justice."

Weissich and Wolters refused to prosecute after a wrangle between Weissich and county physician Rafael G. Dufficy over action by the district attorney's office in providing narcotics for the women because, according to Weissich, they were suffering "withdrawal symptoms" and Dufficy couldn't be reached.

Dufficy alleged that there was no need for treatment and that "shots" were given in exchange for information, which Weissich denied. But Weissich indicated there was reason to believe the women were linked with a ring burglarizing drug stores from Washington to southern California.

Sheriff Louis P. Mountanos backed Dufficy in halting further "shots" for the women. But Weissich's own last shot was—"It was impossible to proceed in this county in view of all this interference."

Senate Passes Richardson Flood Fund

But Amendment Probably Due House Approval

An army engineer survey flood control problems on streams flowing into Richardson Bay has moved closer to final approval in Washington, according to a telegram from Sen. Thomas H. Kuchel (R-Calif.)

The omnibus public works authorization bill, including the Richardson Bay project, was approved by the Senate last night, as part of a Senate amendment to a version the House approved at the last session of Congress.

Apparently this amendment will have to receive House approval before the bill can go to the President.

Kuchel said that the amendment specifically names Coyote Creek and Arroyo Corte Madera Del Presidio.

Coyote Creek, flowing through Tamalpais Valley, has been ahead of the other areas such as Mill Valley's Arroyo Corte Madera Del Presidio.

The Tamalpais Valley work was to have been handled under the Small Project Act until its cost soared.

Under that act the federal government contribution would be limited to $400,000. When army engineers found that the apparent cost would be $527,000, this left a sum which Marin County has not found means to provide.

WEATHER FORECAST

Bay Area: Fair tomorrow but high fog near coast extending inland.

Sierra Nevada: Mostly fair tomorrow, but cloudy afternoon.

Marin College Breakfast Ends Hunger Strike On Death Row

Ten College of Marin graduates were honored and awarded last night at graduation ceremonies in which 104 received associate of arts degrees.

Marianne E. Rattenbury and Lana Jean Maxwell received the school's highest awards in scholarship. Gertrude S. Mueller received the annual art award.

Student body president Gary Antolini and homecoming queen Judy Buell were honored for outstanding citizenship, while Marie Ann Smeltzer received the Associated Women students Merit Award.

Bank of America awards went to Marianne E. Rattenbury and Joyce Pearl Farnsworth. Rotary Club scholarship went to James Turietta. Thea Snyder Bama won the Alpha Gamma Sigma scholarship.

A class gift of a grove of redwood trees was presented the college by Judith Bell, class secretary-treasurer.

Marin Valuation Jump Predicted

Marin County will have an assessed value of 400 million dollars by 1970, according to a special study report from the Bay Area Rapid Transit District released today.

This compares with a present assessed valuation of 218 million and represents a faster upward trend than the estimate shows for five central Bay Area counties overall.

The forecast for the five counties is an increase from a present $4,519,600,000 to $6,786,940,000 in 10 years.

Breakfast Ends Hunger Strike On Death Row

Breakfast was not only served but eaten on San Quentin's Death Row this morning as a three-day not-very-hungry hunger strike ended.

Since Wednesday, 16 of the 17 inmates of the row had accepted but not eaten regular meals.

But they drank coffee and milk, and they nibbled previously stored apples, oranges and candy bars.

Nobody got either hungry or impolite, it appears. But on principle the 16 men on Death Row 10 days ago, when a petition was sent to the warden complaining against alleged too-chilly and overcooked food, stuck to sending the meals back untouched.

The seventeenth man came in after the movement started and when the others refused from Wednesday on, he ate placidly on.

Officials refused to disclose his name.

Associate Warden Walter D. Achuff and Dale B. Frady visited Death Row yesterday afternoon to interview each man, check the food and its service, and promise improvement.

The changed regime was effective with breakfast at 8 o'clock this morning and everybody fell to, in accordance with assurances exchanged yesterday.

Yockey somehow ended his life late Thursday night in his county jail cell with cyanide.

But a spokesman for the federal grand jury said it would continue to investigate Yockey, on the theory that the other persons were perhaps involved with Yockey in a passport ring.

State department agents, the U.S. attorney's office and police also dived again into his background record of mental disorders and alleged association with Fascist groups.

Japan Ratifies Pact; Unrest Still Simmers

TOKYO (AP) — Prime Minister Nobusuke Kishi scored a victory over his Communist and left wing opponents Sunday with final parliamentary approval of a new military alliance with the United States.

But thousands of demonstrators who had chanted and snake-danced through the city shouting opposition to the treaty up to midnight, surrounded the Prime Minister's official residence and threatened to keep him penned inside until he met with them.

Ike Assures Chiang U.S. Ready To Help

TAIPEI (UPI) — President Eisenhower today wound up a triumphant visit which reassured Nationalist Chinese that the United States would rush to their aid if communist China carries out new threats to "liberate" Formosa.

As the president prepared to fly to Okinawa and Seoul, South Korea, the communist Chinese vowed to seize this Nationalist island.

"The Chinese people will liberate Taiwan (Formosa) without fail," speakers boasted. "Eisenhower must get out of the Far East."

Earlier Eisenhower addressed a crowd of some half million people in which he denounced the "tyranny" of the red regime on the communist mainland.

"You may be assured," the president said "that our continuing search for peaceful solutions to outstanding international problems does not reflect the slightest lessening of our determination to stand with you, and with all our free neighbors of the Pacific, against aggression."

The President expressed his determination to press on in searching for what he called an "effective means to outlaw war and to promote the rule of law among nations."

Such a noble quest, he said, is not aided by yielding to threats or by weakening defense against potential aggressors.

"Indeed such weakness would increase the danger of war," he said.

Brown Gains In Plan To Dump Ziffren

SACRAMENTO (AP) — Democrats clashed today in an apparent winning battle by Gov. Brown to dump Paul Ziffren as Democratic national committeeman.

The squabble developed as the state's delegation to the Democratic national convention gathered for its first caucus since the recent presidential primary.

Thousands of students, clustered about the Prime Minister's residence, vowed to remain until Kishi met with them "in the same manner as deposed South Korean President Syngman Rhee met with students" during the Korean uprising that finally drove Rhee from office.

NATIONS GRATIFIED
Kishi's government expressed gratification at the treaty's passage, and in Washington the State Department said: "We view this as another demonstration of U.S.-Japanese friendship."

The biggest demonstration of a turbulent month was staged by the Communists, Socialists and fellow travelers in the hours preceding the automatic ratification of the treaty.

The treaty replaces a 1951 defense agreement, provides that U.S. bases will remain in Japan for at least 10 more years. The United States will defend Japan in case of attack. The U.S. government will consult with Japan before deploying forces from Japan or bringing in new armament.
